SALVATION ARMY

At the County Jail--Jacob From and Son Join In Services.

59 CHAPTER OF ISAIAH

Read and Seemed to Affect the Prisoners Wonderfully—Acknowledged Being Saved, Asks the Army's Prayers.

HE SAYS "MY POOR WIFE AND BOY"

On Sunday the Salvation Army held a religious meeting at the County jail. Four men are confined there, two of which are Jacob From and his 17 year old son James who are accused of murdering Josiah Dale. The singing and prayers of these good people seemed to melt the elder From's heart. As he wept and prayed that God would see him and his boy through safely. He said if God would answer his prayer he knew he would be a free man next Sabbath. When the captain of the corp sang and prayed with him he acknowledged believing in Jesus Christ and that He has power to save. When the scripture was read from the 59th chapter of Isaian as follows:

"Behold, the Lord's hand is not shortened, that it cannot save; neither his ear heavy, that it cannot hear;

But your iniquities have separated between you and your God, and your sins have hid his face from you, that he will not fear.

For your hands are defiled with blood, and your fingers with iniquity; your lips have spoken lies, your tongue hath muttered perverseness.

None calleth for justice, nor any pleadeth for truth; they trust in vanity, and speak lies; they conceive mischief, and bring forth iniquity.

They hatch cockatrice eggs and weave the spider's web; he that eateth of their eggs dieth, and that which is crushed breaketh out into a viper.

Their webs shall not become garments, neither shall they cover themselves with their works, their works are works of iniquity, and the act of violence is in their hands.

Their feet run to evil, and they make haste to shed innocent blood; their thoughts are thoughts of iniquity; wasting and destruction are in their paths.

The way of peace they know not; and there is no judgment in their goings; they have made them crooked paths; whosoever goeth therein shall not know peace.

Therefore is judgment far from us, neither doth justice overtake us; we wait for light, but behold obscurity, for brightness but we walk in darkness.

We grope for the wall like the blind, and we grope as if we had no eyes; we stumble at noon-day as in the night, we are in desolate places as dead men."

It seemed to effect him greatly and when the lady asked him if his heart was right with God he told her he felt satisfied that he was saved.

The strain of being away from his wife who has been quite ill is weighing heavily on the prisoner's mind and nervous system he cries continually and keeps saying "My poor wife and boy." He told a reporter of this paper, that Jimmy said "Pop this is Sunday and this is the day the religious people come to the jail and I am going to ask them to pray for us and for mom."

Jacob says his boy calls over to him every night before he goes to sleep that he should not forget to pray for his mom"

They certainly present a sad scene the father weeping behind those heavy iron bars and the boy in tears hardly old enough to realize the awful crime for which he and his father are accused of committing. It certainly must be an awful strain on that poor wife and mother as she sits all alone in that little humble home in the little village of Centre Hall, afflicted with a disease and not knowing whether her dear husband and only son will ever return to her. She deserves the pity and sympathy of all, in these her hours of trial.

No doubt the hearing next Saturday will attract a large crowd as this case has created a powerful lot of excitement all over the county and in fact thougout the state.

Y. M. C. A. WINS FIRST VICTORY.

The Strong Academy Team Goes Down to Defeat.

On Thursday evening the Association team met and defeated the strong Academy team from the Hill on the gymnasium floor at the Y. M. C. A.

From start to finish it was a fierce battle and at times both teams would seem to be in the lead that is in keeping the ball. The Y. M. C. A. team when the first half ended they had run up a score of 13 points to the Academy's 7. Dunsmore was cheerful throughout the game and did all in his power to have his men redeem themselves in the second half, but they got excited and played away from their men. The Y. M. C. A. boys noticing this weak point gained on the others and when the other half was up they had run the score up 12 more points while the fellows from the Hill had received 6. It was a most interesting game and showed some excellent work on both teams.

The only trouble is the Academy should spend at least an hour or two every day at practice as the Y. M. C. A. boys do, and see whether or not the next game cannot be held down to fewer points and perhaps be won.

Love, Barnes and Gordon on the Association team deserve special mentioning for their shrewd and snappy playing, Shields and Walker also did splendid work. On the Academy team Dunsmore and Oberlin deserve the most credit as they seemed to play the whole game, Mitchell made one goal from the field, but Barnes his opponent tossed in four. We don't want to be partial in writing up the game and as the Y. M. C. A team won last night's game don't you think it would be more interesting if the Academy boys would win the next?

The line up:

Academy		Y. M. C. A.
Colestock	forward	Love
Fullerton	"	Gordon
Dunsmore	centre	Walker
Mitchell (capt)	guard	(capt) Barnes
Oberlin	guard	Shields

Goals from field, Dunsmore 2, Oberlin 2; Mitchell 1; Love 5; Barnes 4; Gordon 3; Foul goals, Barnes 1; Dunsmore 3; referee Waha, State; time keeper, Lingle; time of halves 20 minutes.

Score.

Rev. Barry Chosen Pastor.

Rev. Barry, who is about to finish his course for the ministery, at Susquehanna University, Selinsgrove, was on Sunday last, at a congregational meeting of the Lutheran church of Bellefonte, chosen as pastor for the vacancy that existed for several months. Rev. Barry filled this pulpit on a Sabbath several weeks ago, and the members were so greatly pleased with his efforts morning and evening, that at the election held last Sabbath all votes cast were for extending him a call. Rev. Barry will preach here again on Sabbath, March 17th, morning and evening—thereafter occasionally until commencemet at the University, after which he will be here to serve the charge as pastor. Next Sunday, Rev. Prof. Hoover, of Susquehana University, will preach in the Lutheran church here, morning and evening, and from this on there will be preaching in the Lutheran church every Sabbath. Last Sabbath Rev. Aikens, president of the University at Selinsgrove, filled the Lutheran pulpit here and also administered the Lord's Supper to a large congregation.

CENTRE COUNTY

Boy Stabbed by an Italian in Altoona.

ACCOUNT OF SNOW BALL

Elmer E. Kline Formerly of Jacksonville this County Escaped Being Murdered. Italians Snow Balled by School Boys Attack Men for Revenge.

SHOPMEN ARRIVE ON THE SCENE.

Italians started a cutting affray which came which came within an ace of terminating in a race riot at Sixth Avenue and Fourth street Altoona, shortly before 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Incensed by being snow balled while on their way home to the Weir building, on the same corner, at noon they awaited untill the shopmen were returning to their toil and attacked E. E. Kling, of 118 Fourth avenue, and only for the assistance and help of other shopmen he would have been killed. Two other men were cut during the melee. Hundreds of shopmen gathered on the scene and only for the police would have raided the Weir building of its Italian residents. The three men cut were:

E. E. Kling, 118 Fourth avenue, stabbed in the back.

Grover C. Miller, 211 Fifth avenue stabbed in the right breast, cut on the right wrist.

G. W. Boone, 426 Sixth avenue, stabbed in the breast.

The trouble which started the murderous cutting affray began as the Italians were on their way home to dinner shortly after 12 o'clock. As they were passing along Fourth street to the Weir building they were made the target for a number of snow balls by boys. One of the Italians caught one of the snow ballers and struck him in the mouth with his fist, cutting his lip open. Before further trouble resulted others interfered and the Italians went to their home. The interference of the shopmen tended to enrage the Italians and the trouble broke out anew shortly before 1 o'clock.

E. E. Kling of 118 Fourth avenue, came down Fourth street on his way to work in the Fourth street blacksmith shop at 12:45 o'clock. On reaching the Weir building three or four Italians emerged from the door leading to the flats in the building and started for him. Before he realized what was wrong one of the foreigners, who had evidently laid in wait to get revenge from the snowballers, attacked him and stabbed him in the back. The others rushed at him but by this time Grover C. Miller, of 211 Fifth avenue and G. W. Boone, of 426 Sixth avenue, appeared on the scene and went to his assistance. Both men were attacked by the Italians and stabbed, the former in the right breast and on the wrist and the latter right in the middle of the chest The three men were being hard pressed when other shopmen arrived on the scene and went to their assistance and drove the foreigners away, they fleeing into the Weir building. Soon a half a hundred or more Americans arrived and were for raiding the place but were prevented from so doing by the arrival of Patrolman Stephens. He quieted the crowd and then turned his attention to capturing the numerous Italians.

Typhoid Fever to be Carded.

In the future all houses in which there is a case of typhoid fever will be carded, so the state Board of health has decided. This action is not done because the disease is considered contagious, but from the fact that the disease can be communicated by getting the typhoid germ on the hand and then placing that member of the body to the lips, or drinking water, or eating food left by the patient. With the card will be handed a pamphlet of instructions pertaining to this disease.

Student Loses an Eye.

As the result of an accident while at work in the machine shops at State College, the right eye of Nezza William was removed during the week at the Harrisburg hospital.

HARRY HULL FORMERLY OF BELLEFONTE.

Meets With a Distressing Accident at DuBois.

Harry Hull, of West Long avenue, iron yard foreman at the Adrien furnace, was the victim of a serious accident while at work Saturday which cost him his left arm.

Mr Hull is one of the valuable employes at the furnace, a consistent worker who frequently lends a hand to the development of work which is considered out of the jurisdiction and it was while he was thus aiding his fellow workers that the accident occurred.

WAS WEIGHING CARS.

The scene of the accident was the scales used for weighing cars. The cars were being directed to the scale where they were uncoupled and weighed. Hull undertook to uncouple the cars and as several rolled towards him with an undulating motion he quickly seperated them However, he did not withdraw his arm soon enough and the cars crashed together.

The man's left arm was caught between the knuckles of the cars and before it could be removed was badly mangled. The flesh was stripped to the bone and the injuries inflicted were most painful.

JOKED ABOUT ACCIDENT.

While enduring the terrible pains from his injury Hull showed unusual grit. With the crushed arm drangling at his side as he was removed from the scene of the accident the injured man smiled to his companions and joked about his injury.

The ambulance of Undertaker Moore was summoned and Hull was removed to the B. R. & P. station and thence to the Adrian hospital on the afternoon flyer, despite his protests that he wished to be taken to his home.

Mr. Hull resides near the end of West Long avenue and his wife and four boys. They were at once notified of the accident and Mrs. Hull was visibly moved. She left on the late afternoon train for her husband's side.

ARM AMPUTATED.

The injured man was taken to the operating room of the Adrian hospital late Saturday afternoon and an examination revealed the fact that it would be necessary to amputate the arm just below the shoulder. The operation was performed and last night the man was reported to be resting easy.

The "Weighing" Sociable.

The Sociable held at the home of Mrs. C. C. Shuey last Thursday evening was unusually successful both socially and financially.

The unique feature of the sociable was the "weighing" which was enjoyed by all and the weighmasters certainly knew how to do their duty and were ably assisted by the reception committee.

Too much praise cannot be given to those who participated in the musical program. The vocal solos were rendered by Miss Fitzgerald, Messrs. Godfrey and Meserve. The instrumental music by Miss Rachel Shuey, Nana Mallory, Helen Smith, Mary Brown, Messrs. Dunning, Harris Olewine, and Mrs. Charles Donachy.

Among those who received repeated encores for select reading and recitations were Rachel Shuey, Mildred Grim, Mary Hicklen, Martha Barnhart and little Isabelle Davis. The special feature of the evening was an original recitation by Mr. C. C. Shuey who deserves special mention for his brilliant flow of oratory.

Refreshments were served in the spacious dining room and were much appreciated. The Ladies Aid Society and all those who so willingly assisted can feel amply repaid for any effort made for the success of the Sociable.

The Great and Only "Kappa Delta Pi."

We had the pleasure of visiting the secret chambers of the "Kappa Delta Pi" at the Academy on Monday evening. But we "walked right in and we turned right 'round and we walked right out again," as the dinner bell sounded fourth its beautiful strains for the boys to get down and grind at their physics and algebra other studies. So we just got a glimpse of the interior of this cozy little fraternity room. The fellows have organized a basket ball team among fraternity members and have already accepted invitations to play games at different places. The frat, is made up of the following bunch of boys, Albert Doepkin, Albert Schenk Jr,, William Schenk, George Row, Clyde McCarty, Guy Smith, Edward Taylor, Frank Seyler, Don McCreight, Robert McCaslin Jr., Charles Fullerton, John Dunsmore Jr., Emery Gearhart and Edward Whetstone,

ALDERMAN IRWIN

Formerly of Bellefonte But now a Resident of Altoona.

RAISED IN BELLEFONTE

Is Engaged in a Crusade Which he Expects to Result in Breaking up the Practice of Stealing Coal From P. R. R. Co.

MENTIONED FOR MAYOR OF ALTOONA

Alderman John J. Irwin of the Fourth ward, is engaged in a crusade which he expects to result in breaking up the practice of stealing coal from the Pennsylvania Company. His officers have made many arrests for this offense in the past few months and more will follow unless the practice is discontinued at once.

He has had especial trouble with foreigners who live in shanties along the railroad and who never think of buying a ton of coal, but take it all form the railroad tracks. The latest arrest was that of Henry Lewis, a negro, who with Charles Knox and Robert Able, occupy a shanty at the upper ends of the yards and, it is said steal coal when they cannot make a living out of prize fighting.

Lewis was arrested Saturday for stealing coal and, becoming very belligerent in the Alderman's office was sentenced to pay a fine of $5 and costs and in default was sent to jail for 20 days.

An old man probably 60 years of age and very feeble, was also arrested for stealing coal, but Alderman Irwin discharged him on account of his age.

Railroad Officer Frank Hetrick arrested Mike Home, Tony Polesa and Gus Polesa, on a charge of trespass, the three Slaves having gone on a pig drunk Saturday night and then taken posession of a railroad shanty near Twenty fourth street. They were each fined $5 and costs, but Alderman Irwin suspended sentence on condition that they never enter a railroad shanty again.

Small Trout Suffer With Sore Throat.

Harrisburg,—Sore throat is epidemic among the young trout of the state fish batcheries of Pennsylvania and is causing wholesale destruction of small fish, according to State Fish Commissioner Meehan. Meehan in his report, submitted Saturday. At the Corry hatchery, 1,500,000 have died the past two weeks. At the Spruce Creek hatchery nearly one-third of the entire stock is gone. The disease has broken out at the Bellefonte hatchery. The young fish at the Wayne hatchery are showing signs of the disease.

The cause of the disease is unknown, but it is probably due to snow water getting into the spring in unusual quantities, and thus reducing the quantity of oxygen. This has a tendency to weaken the small fish when they are crowded in the troughs and renders them liable to disease.

Meehan said if the fish could be put into the streams at once, the trouble would probably disappear. He has given orders to the superintendents to ship immediately to the applicants, because if the fish remain in the troughs much longer they will die.

The First Anniversary.

The Mountain Side Bible School in Coleville observed its first anniversary last Sunday afternoon with a large and interested attendance. The different denominations represented in the School are working together in harmony and no apparent dissatisfaction with anything that has been done or that is undertaken for another year.

The Secretary's report showed an average attendance of 96.

The Treasurer reported $6.90 on hand. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year.

Jacob Cole. Supetintendent, Solomon Barlett, Assistant, Mrs. Nancy Miller, Secretary, Luther Drake, Treasurer.

Missioner Crittenden delivered the anniversary address. All seems to be growing in interest with hopeful prospects for success in the good work.

THIRTY ONE YEARS AGO.

Some Will Remember These Articles But Many Have Passed Away.

Last Saturday at five minutes past three in the afternoon Captain William Cook a highly respected citizen of this place died, being in the 77 year of his faithful life. Capt. Cook, for by his name only was he known to many of the people of our town, was an industrious, hard working man. Many of our middle aged citizens can remember when they were boys, his wheel right shop on Howard street where he and his boys worked. He had nine children, eight boys and one girl, and all this family, without a single exception he raised up to become honored and respected citizens. Two of his boys went into the Army of the North to fight under the flag of the free. Two of them never returned alive. Samuel was taken a prisoner of war and starved to death amid the horrors of the prison pen at Andersonville, and James fell fighting manfully on the battle field of Antietam.

Louis Doll has sold his present place of business on High street to Faust, the carpet weaver. Mr. Doll has rented a room of Blanchard & McCafferty opposite the depot.

The rush at the Bush House still continues and if we are to judge by the arrivals there every body and their friends stop with Colonel Wilkinson when they come to town.

General Beaver and John Rishel of Benner twp, raised thirty bushels of wheat to the acre last year.

Robert McKnight is brought out by the "Watchman" as a Democratic candidate for Associate Judge in this county.

Dr. S. Belford wishes us to inform his friends in this vicinity that he has returned and can be found at his old quarters over the Reynolds Bank.

Rev. T. M. Reese will preach in the M. E. church on next Sabbath at 10½ o'clock a. m the evening at 7½ o'clock.

NOTE—Copied from the Bellefonte Republican issued March 15th, 1876.

Two Bellefonte Boys Acquited.

John O'Brien charged with assault and battery and with intent to kill, was placed on trial in Judge Hart's court Friday morning. The case grew out of an assault on Harry Neuschafer a non-union moulder, on the night of September 15th, Neuschafer was badly used up and it was claimed that the assault on him had been committed by John O'Brien and Sidney McQuay, formerly of Bellefonte members of the Moulders' union.

Neuschafer was the principal witness for the prosecution and alleged that he was positive O'Brien was one of his assailants. The latter went on the stand in his own behalf and not only positively denied having had anything to do with the assault, but said he did not even know Neuschafer and had never seen him prior to the hearing at the alderman's office. He described in detail his movements on the night in question and his statements as to his whereabouts were corroporated by a number of witnesses. O'Brien created a good impression by his testimony. In answer to a question by his attorney, C. J. Reilly, he said it was the first time in his life he had ever been before a court and jury.

Miss McGarvey to Start a Studio.

Miss Mame McGarvey who has been connected with the Mallory Studio for many years will the beginning of the month open up a photograph gallery of her own in the rooms recently occupied by photographer Ostrich in the Lyons building on Allegheny street. Miss McGarvey is a professional at the business and has sent fourth work from the Mallory studio that was highly commented on. We predict for the young lady success in her venture into the business world and hope our predictions will prove true.

A Good Investment

If some of our good citizens will build say a dozen good houses in the town we feel sure every one of them could be rented for a good sum of money. We know of eight different families who want houses with modern improvements and who would be willing to pay a decent rent. New families are moving into the town who want homes and want them now.

PERILOUS RIDE

DIDN'T DARE TO MOVE

For Fear of Breaking the Ice or Losing his Equilibrium Rescued by Policeman

ELMER DWELBES ON 6 FEET OF ICE

Philadelphia, March 7.—Seven-years-old Elmer Dwelbes floated on a thin cake of ice about six feet square several miles down the Delaware river Thursday night while the ice water lapped his ankles, benumbing him. He was unable to stamp his feet to keep up the circulation for fear of breaking the cake of ice, and he did not dare swing his arms for warmth lest he lose his equilibrium. The boy was almost frozen when rescued by a policeman.

With three other boys, Elmer was sliding on the ice when a steamboat went up the river sending swells rolling under and over the ice field. There was a cracking and the boys found their slide broken, leaving a quickly increasing space of open water between them and the shore. Two jumped to safety.

FIGHTING THE SEA.

Holland's Continuous Performance in Preventing Floods.

Holland is a country of wooden piles and dikes, for the people are perpetually fighting against the encroachments of water. One building in Amsterdam rests on no fewer than 13,659 piles, though the dikes around the town, which have been erected at enormous expense, effectually prevent any chance of a flood. The streets of the flourishing port of Rotterdam even are frequently made water in the winter, and in some parts of south Holland the people are compelled to do their shopping in boats.

When the Zuyder Zee breaks on to the land, those who wade up to their knees along the streets of a flooded village meet all manner of fish. This is explained by the fact that the Zuyder Zee, with its mud bottom, is literally crammed with finny tribes; and one authority states that if it were well scraped of all its fish one year, it would be full again the next.

The land of Holland is really of four distinct levels, and from ten to twelve feet between the highest and the lowest. To make the land dry, the water is pumped from the lowest level to the one immediately above it, and so on, until the water has been returned again to the sea. A large number of engineers are specially engaged to look after the dikes, and no less a sum than $2,500,000 is expended every year in keeping these fortifications against the sea in proper repair.

Bodily Proportions.

In the man of average stature the height of the body is ten times the length of the face, the face from the chin to the hair is as long as the hand, the arm is four times the length of the face, the sole of the foot is one-sixth the length of the body, and six times the thickness of the hand in the thickest part equals the thickness of the body.

WOMAN'S ORIGIN.

The Story as It Is Told In an Old Sanskrit Legend.

Tradition says there was a scarcity of solid elements at the time of her creation.

At the beginning of time Twashtri, the Vulcan of the Hindoo mythology, created the world, but when he wished to create a woman he found that he had employed all his material in the creation of man. There did not remain one solid element. Then Twashtri, perplexed, fell into a profound meditation. He roused himself as follows:

He took the roundness of the moon, the undulations of the serpent, the intwining of climbing plants, the trembling of the grass, the slenderness of the rose vine and the velvet of the flower, the lightness of the leaf and the glance of the fawn, the gayety of the sun's rays and tears of the mist, the inconstancy of the wind and the timidity of the hare, the vanity of the peacock and the softness of the down on the throat of the swallow, the hardness of the diamond, the sweet flavor of honey and the cruelty of the tiger, the warmth of fire, the chill of snow, the chatter of the jay and the cooing of the turtledove. He united all these and formed a woman. Then he made a present of her to man.

Eight days later the man came to Twashtri and said:

"My lord, the creature you gave me poisons my existence. She chatters without rest, she takes all my time, she laments for nothing at all and is always ill."

And Twashtri received the woman again.

But eight days later the man came again to the god and said:

"My lord, my life is very solitary since I returned this creature. I remember she glanced at me from the corner of her eye, and she played with me, clung to me."

And Twashtri returned the woman to him.

Three days only passed, and Twashtri saw the man coming to him again.

"My lord," said he, "I do not understand exactly how, but I am sure the woman causes me more annoyance than pleasure. I beg of you to relieve me of her."

But Twashtri cried, "Go your way and do your best!"

And the man cried, "I cannot live with her!"

"Neither can you live without her," replied Twashtri.

And the man was sorrowful, murmuring: "Woe is me! I can neither live with her nor without her."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Contrast.

A small negro boy was putting his head against the marble steps of the capitol. He would step back a few feet and then run toward the steps, striking them full force with his head.

SPEED SWIMMING.

The Difficult Side Stroke and How It Is Accomplished.

Whether a man be a swimmer or not, in taking up a new stroke he should begin with the leg movement only. In the side stroke it is called the scissors kick. To acquire it find a place with water at least three feet in depth, where you can use either a stationary or a floating support. Take hold of this support and let your body rest on the water, on its side, with legs straight and well together and feet as if standing on tiptoe. Choose the side that feels most comfortable. Now proceed to open the legs very slowly, not frog fashion, but front and back, as in walking. The upper should be brought forward almost straight, the under, back, bent to a kneeling position. When they are about two feet apart snap sharply together.

The position of the body is unchanged. Lie on your side, with body and legs in a straight line; both arms perpendicularly over your head, and the palms turned slightly away from the face. Bring upper arm down smartly, keeping it rigid at elbow and wrist, palm of hand open, fingers well together. Carry it through the water just below the surface, describing a semicircle to end at the thigh, then bend arm at the elbow and bring it forward well above water, until it is straight before you in the original position. The under arm should be started when the upper one is just about through with its stroke, and should be brought down with force, almost parallel to it, so that at the finish it brushes the lower thigh; then it is bent at the elbow like the other and brought forward just below the surface. The upper arm should rest on the water, at full reach, while the under one recovers, until it is at the height of the head.

The action of the arms in the side stroke entails a rolling motion of the body which buries the face at every stroke. This necessitates an artificial way of breathing, which has to be learned before the stroke can be swum properly. It is advisable to make a special study of it. Air should be inhaled through the mouth as the upper arm is being brought down and should be exhaled through the nostrils, under water, while the under arm goes forward. Some find this impossible even after long practice, and breathe in and out through the mouth during the short period that the face is above water, but if one can acquire the other way it is far the best.

The legs should be opened very slowly just as the under arm starts its recovery, they should be snapped together when the upper arm is in the middle of its stroke. If properly timed the side stroke gives a clean, even progress, without a break or a check.—L. de B. Handley in Outing Magazine.

From the Bountiful East.

A small proportion of the flora is indigenous. The majority came from the east, like all the great ideas on which our culture is founded, and were developed and improved on this classic soil. Italy received the lemon and the orange from the Semites, who in their turn had obtained them from India. The olive, the fig, the vine and the palm were grown by the Semites long before their cultivation penetrated to the west. The laurel and myrtle, indeed, are indigenous in Italy, but their use for ceremonial purposes came across the Mediterranean from the east. The home of the cypress is not in Italy, but in the Greek archipelago, northern Persia, Cilicia and Lebanon.—From Strasburger's "Riviera."

The Difference.

Small Boy—Pa, what is the difference between a pessimist and an optimist? Pa—Well, let me see if I can illustrate. You know I am often discouraged, and things don't look to me as if they'd ever go right. Well, at such times I can be said to be a pessimist. But years ago, when I was a young man, everything looked bright and rosy, and I was always hopeful. Then I was an optimist. Now, my son, can you understand the difference between a pessimist and an optimist? Small Boy—Oh, yes; one is married and the other isn't.—Harper's Weekly.

How to Enjoy Whist.

Get yourself roped into a game as partner to some one who helped Hoyle write his book. The other two players must also be experts. Start in pleasantly to enliven the game with a few well chosen anecdotes, now and then making the wrong play. After your partner has slapped your ears and sworn at you and put the black curse on you and all your ancestry and called you a fool a few times you will awake to the real joy of the gentle and intellectual game. We have tried this several times, but not at frequent intervals, and we can guarantee its efficacy.

Time.

Two Heads.

"Do you really believe two heads are better than one?"

"Give it up, but I know we wouldn't amount to much without foreheads."—Philadelphia Ledger.

THE STAGE KISS.

What It Really Means Rather Than What It Seems to Be.

Stage kisses! No one but an actor or an actress can fully appreciate what they mean. The picture as presented to the audience is very pretty, but the vision which looms up before the eyes of the poor player is something like this:

A face covered with a coating of cold cream, which has been powdered over with a thick layer of pearl white or brunette powder, as the case may be. On the cheeks are daubs of rouge which at that close range is as impossible manner suggest, as they do to the audience, the rosy cheeks of a country lassie. Over the eyes is rubbed a little dark blue powder to make them poetical. The underlids are heavily pencilled, and a mark extends a quarter of an inch from the eye at each end. This makes them look [illegible]. On each separate lash is a bead of black cosmetic, which has the effect of making them heavy and long. The cherry lips, which to the audience the hero is eager to press to his own, are to his distorted vision at such close range only a gash of carmine painted into a Cupid's bow.

The actress sees before her a picture even less attractive, for ten chances to one the hero, in addition to his grease paint, wears a false mustache and is also "smelly" with tobacco. The glare of the footlights tones down this conglomeration of paint, and at a distance the faces are actually pretty, but upon close inspection they resemble nothing more than a very bad oil painting out of focus.

Taken from this viewpoint, some of the very impassioned kisses featured in plays require no little self sacrifice on the part of the players.—Harriet Quimby in Leslie's Weekly.

Only Two Continents.

An Englishman, smoking a pipe, sat in a club car on a western train. There were several traveling men near by. They were discussing themselves and telling how good they were.

"I suppose," said one, "that I have about as long a trip as any one in the business. I go from Boston to San Francisco twice a year."

"Oh," said another, "I can beat that. I cross the continent twice every year, and I take in Canada."

The Englishman listened intently. He was interested. "By the way," said one of the drummers to him, "what is your business?"

"Oh," the Englishman replied, "my name is Douglass, and I come from London. I am a traveling man myself."

"What is your line?"

"Carpets."

"Have you got much territory?"

"Oh, not much," the Englishman replied modestly. "Only North America and Africa."

Dense, Indeed.

Curate—I hear your husband has signed the pledge. Has he kept it to the letter? Parishioner—It wasn't a letter, sir; it were a card. Curate—I mean has he kept his pledge inviolate? Parishioner—No, sir; I've kept it in lavender in a drawer. Curate — I'm afraid you don't understand me. What I mean is—has he broken the pledge since he took it? Parishioner — He hasn't touched it, sir. I've kept it wrapped up in paper, and it's as good as new.

Then the curate gave it up as hopeless.—London Express.

Why They Cried.

"I say, mamma," said little Flossie, "why did Mrs. Brown cry at the wedding today?"

"Oh, because her dear daughter was getting married and leaving her."

"And why did Mrs. Jones cry?"

"Oh, because her dear son has left her."

"I see. And why did Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Simpson cry?"

"Oh, because they have ever so many daughters to get married and no sign of any of them going off."—Pearson's Weekly.

English Sunday Laws.

The most absurd of British laws is undoubtedly that forbidding a man pursuing his trade on Sunday. Apart from the moral aspect of the case, this law is constantly broken, and the cases being reported form an excellent advertisement for the lawbreaker.—London Telegraph.

Nicknames.

"It's funny how a nickname, given to one during one's boyhood, will stick to one throughout a lifetime," said a man recently. "The variety of nicknames is also amusing. If I were asked to explain the conditions, I should say that it was because the 'rest of the kids' didn't like the real names and just substituted others to suit themselves. For instance, a boy comes to school with a lengthy name that a fond mother has given him with no doubt in the world that he will bear it all his life. Usually her fond hopes are shattered and the little 'dear' will come home from school the proud possessor of such a 'hang-on' as Tip, Blip, Bell or Buck. And it sticks too."—Columbus Dispatch.

A Powerful Salve.

A man in Nebraska invented a new powerful double acting salve which shows powers never before exhibited by salves of any kind. The inventor accidentally cut off the tail of a tame wolf, and, immediately applying some of the salve to the stump, a new tail grew out. Then, picking up the old tail, he applied some of the salve to the raw end of that, and a wolf grew out, but he was a wild wolf and had to be shot.—Chicago Tribune.

AN INDIAN MYSTERY.

The White Woman Who Fought With the Tonto Apaches.

In 1864 Dr. Alsap and Lord Duppa, well known pioneers, were prospecting with a party in the Bradshaw mountains on the Hassayampa creek. One morning the party separated for the purpose of hunting. In going up a canyon, in which they were separated from their companions by high mountains, Duppa's detachment was attacked by a large band of Tonto Apaches. The whites gradually fought their way across the ridge with the hope of rejoining their companions. During the advance Duppa, who was stationed behind a rock, noticed that he was the particular mark of an Indian with a bow. Several arrows had fallen at his feet, and one struck him in the arm. Raising his rifle, he took aim, and just as he was touching the trigger the supposed Indian cried, "Don't shoot!" in good English, but it was too late, and the body fell over with life extinct. Soon after the two parties succeeded in forming a junction, and the Indians retreated, leaving their dead.

Out of curiosity the party returned to the place where Duppa killed the supposed Indian and found that it was a white woman, evidently about thirty years of age and dressed in all the paraphernalia of the Apaches. Investigation was made, but no trace of her former whereabouts could ever be obtained.

The Weathering of Coal.

It is probably not generally known that coal exposed to the atmosphere undergoes chemical changes greatly affecting its quality. Moisture is the most powerful agent in producing such change. It is a matter of common knowledge among men engaged in the making of illuminating gas that coal which has been stored for a long time experiences a loss of hydrocarbons, and the effects of the change are shown in a diminution of the volume of the coal and in a loss of illuminating power in the gas produced from it. Such chemical changes occurring in great masses of coal may even produce sufficient accumulation of heat to cause spontaneous combustion.

More Passes for Employes.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company is getting more liberal with its annual passes to employes and the new rule is that all firemen who have been in the company's employ for three years are to have an annual pass, good only on their respective divisions. Firemen on the Philadelphia division can ride on the pass from Harrisburg to Philadelphia and intermediate points, and those on the Middle division can ride from Harrisburg to Altoona and intermediate points.

The passes are issued in the name of the firemen, but as soon as he is promoted to engineer the pass will be in the name of the fireman and his wife, if he be married. Annual passes have also been issued to all engineermen regardless of service. Ten years services was the old rule. This new pass rule was one of the differences settled between the grievance committee of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and the management of the railroad company some time ago.

You Can Help a Little.

In order to make our Daily lively and full of news we earnestly ask that you all help us a little in the news line. We have both phones and it would only take you a couple of minutes to call up the office and tell us of a great many little happenings that we do not gather when out on the streets. We would deem it a great favor if at any time you would tell us little items that would undoubtedly interest many people in the town. Bellefonte is a quiet little city and at the best we are able to gather about four columns of local news, but many times you have parties, dinners, friends visit you from a distance, and you go visiting, all this is news we would be pleased to publish the same.

Most people know that if they have been sick they need Scott's Emulsion to bring back health and strength.

But the strongest point about Scott's Emulsion is that you don't have to be sick to get results from it.

It keeps up the athlete's strength, puts fat on thin people, makes a fretful baby happy, brings color to a pale girl's cheeks, and prevents coughs, colds and consumption.

Food in concentrated form for sick and well, young and old, rich and poor.

MYTHICAL CREATURES.

The General Belief In Fabulous Monsters In Olden Days.

Now that the cold light of science has thrown its ray upon the most remote parts of our globe there is no longer room for legendary creatures—save the sea serpent—and we are told that the mermaid is nothing more than a dugong, a unicorn either a rhinoceros or a Tibetan antelope, while the cockatrice, the phoenix and the roc appear to be pure imaginations.

But in the Elizabethan age—an age when the dodo had but recently been discovered—these and many other mythical creatures were, if not living, at all events actual realities to the ordinary public, and as such were referred to in the works of the great dramatist and other contemporary writers. We meet, for instance, in the "Winter's Tale" the line, "Make me not sighted like the basilisk," and in "The Tempest," "Now I will believe that there are unicorns." But not only was more or less of credulity given to the existence of these and such like fabulous monsters, but a web of mystic lore encircled the most common and best known of beasts, birds and fishes. Who, for instance, is forgetful of the popular superstitions connected with the salamander, the newt and the blindworm, and who fails to remember White's account of the "shrewash" at Selborne? And if such superstitions still survive among uneducated peasants of the present day we may be assured that two centuries ago they were fully believed by the higher classes.—Academy.

WORKS OF A WATCH.

All the Parts Are but the Expression of One Idea.

To one who has never studied the mechanism of a watch its mainspring or the balance wheel is a mere piece of metal. He may have looked at the face of the watch, and while he admires the motions of its hands and the time it keeps he may have wondered in idle amazement as to the character of the machinery which is concealed within. Take it to pieces and show him each part separately, and he will recognize neither design nor adaptation nor relation between them, but put them together, set them to work, point out the offices of each spring, wheel and cog, explain their movements and then show him the result. Now he perceives that it is all one design; that, notwithstanding the number of parts, their diverse forms and various offices and the agents concerned, the whole piece is of one idea. He now rightly concludes that when the mainspring was fashioned and tempered its relation to all the other parts must have been considered; that the cogs on this wheel are cut and regulated—adapted—to the ratchets on that, etc., and his final conclusion will be that such a piece of mechanism could not have been produced by chance, for the adaptation of the parts is such as to show it to be according to design and obedient to the will of one intelligence.

Fifty Miles to Market.

It is not an uncommon thing in France to see a farmer forty or fifty miles from home in wet weather with a load. If he sees a prospect of a three days' rain, he puts his tarpaulin over his load, a cover over his horses and a waterproof coat on and starts off to market. He may go fifty miles before he finds a market that suits him, or he may know in advance just where he is going. You do not often see anybody driving fifty miles through a rainstorm in the United States to find a market for a load of hay, but it is not uncommon to see farmers' wagons forty or fifty miles from home in France. They choose the wet weather for that purpose. Their roads are just as good then as at any time.

The Chinese.

Conservative historians among the Chinese claim for their race an antiquity of at least 100,000 years, while those whose estimates are a little "wild" assert that the Chinese were the original inhabitants of the earth and that Chinese history goes back at least 500,000,000 years. The government records of China place the foundation of the empire at 2500 B. C. and claim that it was established by Tohi, who, they assert, is the Noah mentioned in the book of Genesis, B. C. 2240.

How It Struck Her.

"You seemed greatly impressed," said the minister, "with my description of how they brought the head of John the Baptist before the king on a salver."

"Yes," sighed Mrs. De Style; "I was thinking how much better they trained servants in those days. Now, mine, when they bring me things, are forever forgetting the salver."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Might Have Made a Killing.

A physician took it into his head to go rabbit shooting. About 4 o'clock in the afternoon he returned, tired out and empty handed, telling his wife that he hadn't killed a thing. Thereupon she remarked: "I told you so. If you had stayed at home and attended to your legitimate business you might have been more successful."—Chicago News.

A SOURCE OF DISEASE.

Beware the Man Who Blows Smoke Through His Nostrils.

A popular practice of many smokers consists in discharging the smoke inhaled, especially from cigarettes through the nostrils. This is even considered by some to be essential to the full enjoyment of the flavor of the tobacco.

The London Lancet, while acknowledging that perhaps under ordinary circumstances no harm is done to the smoker save to his sense of smell, has sounded a note of warning against the habit as a possible disseminator of disease. Hay fever and other annoying complaints have been spread through unsuspecting households by the unthinking visitor who habitually blew smoke through his nose.

The surface traversed by the tobacco smoke before issuing from the nose, it is remarked by the Lancet, is moistened with the natural secretion of the mucous membrane lining it, and this secretion is mingled with the fluid discharged from the conjunctival sac protecting the eyes. It therefore contains numerous micro organisms, which, floating in the air, have become attached to the moist and stick surface of the conjunctiva, as well as those which pass over the surface of the nasal membrane. As Tyndall long ago showed, germs are completely filtered off from the air inhaled by the extensive and irregular surfaces presented by the turbinal bones. These germs are carried into the air by the man who blows smoke through his nostrils.

General Longstreet's Story.

"I had resigned from the northern army," said the late General Longstreet at a Georgia campfire, "and was on my way to fight with my state countrymen. One night I reached a small hamlet, and, being almost too tired to care whether friends or foes were there, I stopped and asked for supper and a night's lodging. A nice old colored aunty opened the door and let me in. 'If you'se a southerner,' she said, 'you can have your eggs fried tender. If you'se a northerner they'll be tougher than leather.'

"I had to laugh while I assured her I was a southerner. In the morning I asked for my bill. 'It ain't nothin',' said she, 'if ye're goin' on ter Richmond, but ef ye're goin' hum ter think it over it'll cost yer $10.'"—Philadelphia Press.

A Popular Myth Exploded.

"There is a popular myth," says Colonel Mosby, "that Pope announced in his general order upon taking command that his 'headquarters would be in the saddle.' The fact is that Pope never said any such thing, but it has become an article of faith in the south. To question its truth in Virginia would be regarded as being as great an act of impiety as to discredit the legend of Pocahontas and Captain Smith."

A Christmas Conceit In Pastry.

Christmas wreaths are a dainty, sweet conceit for this season of the year, says Fannie Merritt Farmer in Woman's Home Companion for December. They are made of a simple meringue mixture, which, if one chooses, may be shaped in a variety of ways. Sometimes I add a third of a cupful of shredded cocoanut or chopped nut meats to give a variety. Beat the white of four eggs until stiff and add gradually while beating constantly two-thirds of a cupful of fine granulated sugar and continue the beating until the mixture will hold its shape. Cut and fold in one-third of a cupful of fine granulated sugar and flavor with half a teaspoonful of vanilla. Shape in wreaths, using a pastry bag and tube, on a wet board covered with letter paper. Ornament with angelica and red candies to represent holly leaves and berries. Bake thirty minutes in a slow oven and remove from the paper, using a sharp, long bladed knife. Unless one has a very correct eye it is well to have a guide for shaping these rings. Mark circles on the letter paper with a lead pencil, using a doughnut cutter for a pattern.

In Doubt.

On a famous rifle range there was an important team match one day, and the men were firing in pairs, one for each team, side by side. The best shot on the home team was given to aiming so long that bets were made on whether or not he had gone to sleep at the firing point. Presently he withdrew his head from the stock of his rifle, lowered the barrel and asked his opponent in a low voice:

"Did I fire or did you?"—Forest and Stream.

A Cause For Thanks.

Charles O'Conor once began an after dinner speech in Philadelphia in this way:

"I must confess that I dread to make after dinner speeches. At the most sumptuous dinners, even at such a dinner as this one, if I know that at the end I must make a speech I am nervous, I have no appetite, I find little to admire in the best efforts of the chef. In truth, gentlemen, I can readily imagine Daniel, if he was at all of my mind, heaving a sigh of relief as the lions drew near to devour him—heaving a sigh of relief and murmuring:

"'Well, if there's any after dinner speaking to be done on this occasion, at least it won't be done by me.'"

To Run Machinery by Cat Power.

A project to lessen the expense of generating power to run the exhibits at the electrical show in Chicago is under consideration, says a Chicago dispatch. The plan is to utilize the electricity latent in 257 cats. Experts interested in the show say the scheme is feasible.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Deception of Wild Birds.

Falcons—hawks, the largest species—can compress their features and look very thin if they think it necessary to do so. As to the owls, they can hump into any position they think most suitable. It is useless to look for these self preserving traits in any of the family kept in zoological collections, for the birds are so accustomed to see large numbers of people passing and repassing or standing in front of them that they treat the whole matter with perfect indifference. They know that at a certain time their food will be brought to them and that they are otherwise perfectly safe. The raptures in a wild state have a bloom on their plumage, like the bloom on a bunch of grapes, which is not so often seen when in captivity.

A Train For Tyler.

During Mr. Tyler's incumbency of the presidential office he arranged to make an excursion in some direction and sent his son Bob to arrange for a special train. It happened that the railroad superintendent was a strong Whig. As such he had no favors to bestow on the president and informed Bob that his road did not run any special trains for the president. "What!" said Bob. "Did you not furnish a special train for the funeral of President Harrison?" "Yes," said the superintendent, "and if you'll bring your father in that condition you shall have the best train on the road."

A Mind Reader.

One night at a court ball in the Tuileries Napoleon III. was so attentive to a beautiful young woman as to excite comment among the other women. At last, in response to a direct tribute to her beauty, she said:

"Ah, but your majesty compliments me too much!"

"How remarkable," he replied with a twinkle in his eye, "that you should say just what every other woman here is thinking!"

DAWN OF A NEW RELIGION.

No Throne Above, No Beyond, Says Professor Schmidt of Cornell.

Professor Nathaniel Schmidt of the Cornell department of Semitic languages and oriental history preached in the Unitarian church at Ithaca the other morning, says the New York World.

The speaker declared that a new religion was approaching, in which is a deeper insight into nature and a deepening of the moral sense. Christianity has failed to adapt itself to the spiritual needs of man, he said. The new religion will meet all these. It will be universal, covering all times and peoples.

The supernatural in religion is foolishness, he declared. There is no throne above in the new faith, and the idea of a beyond can have no place. We are all denizens of the universe. The mind must progress. Away with formulas and creeds! Put them into a museum, as a thing to be studied.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

A LAZY LIVER

May be only a tired liver, or a starved liver. It would be a stupid as well as savage thing to beat a weary or starved man because he lagged in his work. So in treating the lagging, torpid liver it is a great mistake to lash it with strong drastic drugs. A torpid liver is but an indication of an ill-nourished, enfeebled body whose organs are weary with over-work. Start with the stomach and allied organs of digestion and nutrition. Put them in working order and see how quickly your liver will become active. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has made many marvelous cures of "liver complaint," or torpid liver, by its wonderful control over the organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores the normal activity of the stomach, increases the secretions of the blood-making glands, cleanses the system of poisonous accumulations, and so relieves the liver of the burdens imposed upon it by the defection of other organs.

Symptoms. If you have bitter or bad taste in the morning, poor or variable appetite, coated tongue, foul breath, constipated or irregular bowels, feel weak, easily tired, despondent, frequent headaches, pain or distress in "small of back," gnawing or distressed feeling in stomach, perhaps nausea, bitter or sour "risings" in throat after eating, and kindred symptoms of weak stomach and torpid liver, or biliousness, no medicine will relieve you more promptly or cure you more permanently than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Perhaps only a part of the above symptoms will be present at one time and yet point to torpid liver, or biliousness and weak stomach. Avoid all hot bread and biscuits, griddle cakes and other indigestible food and take the "Golden Medical Discovery" regularly and stick to its use until you are vigorous and strong.

Of Golden Seal root, which is one of the prominent ingredients of "Golden Medical Discovery," Dr. Roberts Barthlow, of Jefferson Medical College, says: "Very useful as a stomachic (stomach), tonic and in atonic dyspepsia. Cures gastric (stomach) catarrh and headaches accompanying same."

Dr. Grover Coe, of New York, says: "Hydrastis (Golden Seal root) exercises an especial influence over mucous surfaces. Upon the liver it acts with equal certainty and efficacy. As a cholagogue (liver invigorator) it has few equals." Dr. Coe also advises it for affections of the spleen and other abdominal viscera generally, and for scrofulous and glandular diseases, cutaneous eruptions, indigestion, debility, chronic diarrhea, constipation, also in several affections peculiar to women, and in all chronic derangements of the liver, also for chronic inflammation of bladder, for which Dr. Coe says "it is one of the most reliable agents of cure."

Prof. John King, M. D., late of Cincinnati, author of the AMERICAN DISPENSATORY, gives it a prominent place among medicinal agents, reiterates all the foregoing writers have said about it, as does also Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., late of Cincinnati. Dr. Scudder says: "It stimulates the digestive processes and increases the assimilation of food. By these means the blood is enriched. * * * the consequent improvement on the glandular and nervous systems are natural results." Dr. Scudder further says, "in relation to its general effect upon the system, there is no medicine in use about which there is such general unanimity of opinion. It is universally regarded as the tonic, useful in all debilitated states * * *."

Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago, says of Golden Seal root: "It is a most superior remedy in catarrhal gastritis (inflammation of the stomach), chronic constipation, general debility, in convalescence from protracted fevers, in prostrating night-sweats. It is an important remedy in disorders of the womb." (This agent, Golden Seal root, is an important ingredient of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for woman's weaknesses, as well as of the "Golden Medical Discovery.") Dr. Ellingwood continues, "in all catarrhal conditions it is useful."

Much more, did space permit, could be quoted from prominent authorities as to the wonderful curative properties possessed by Golden Seal root.

We want to assure the reader that "Golden Medical Discovery" can be relied upon to do all that is claimed for Golden Seal root in the cure of all the various diseases as set forth in the above brief extracts, for its most prominent and important ingredient is Golden Seal root. This agent is, however, strongly reinforced, and its curative action greatly enhanced by the addition, in just the right proportion of Queen's root, Stone root, Black Cherrybark, Bloodroot, Mandrake root and chemically pure glycerine. All of these are happily and harmoniously blended into a most perfect pharmaceutical compound, now favorably known throughout most of the civilized countries of the world. Bear in mind that each and every ingredient entering into the "Discovery" has received the endorsement of the leading medical men of our land, who extol each article named above in the highest terms. What other medicine put up for sale through druggists can show any such professional endorsement? For dyspepsia, liver troubles, all chronic catarrhal affections of whatever name or nature, lingering coughs, bronchial, throat and lung affections, the "Discovery" can be relied upon as a sovereign remedy.

A little book of extracts treating of all the several ingredients entering into Dr. Pierce's medicines, being extracts from standard medical works, of the different schools of practice will be mailed free to any one asking (by postal card or letter), for the same, addressed to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and giving the writer's full post-office address plainly written.

Women as Walkers.

Even the athletic girls and women of today can hardly make any advance upon the record of Mary Lamb, who wrote to Miss Wordsworth (both women being between fifty and sixty years old): "You say you can walk fifteen miles with ease. That is exactly my stint." She then speaks pityingly of a delicate woman who could accomplish "only four or five miles every third or fourth day, keeping very quiet between."

Manhattan Island.

Indians who accepted $24 from Governor Peter Minuit for Manhattan Island in 1626 did not make such a bad bargain, for if they had invested that sum of money at compound interest at the prevailing rates since then their heirs would now have $12,000,000,000.

Impartial Criticism.

A well known salesman entered a west end conservatory the other afternoon on business. A girl was playing a piano in an adjoining room. Suddenly she began Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," and the teacher conversing with the salesman paused to listen.

"Can't you stop that noise until I explain this to you?" broke in the man of business, who seemed to be a privileged character.

"That girl will be a great musician some day," replied the unruffled teacher. "She is naturally talented. Just listen."

"I don't agree with you," snapped the salesman. "She plays too fast and too loud. Who is she?"

"Your daughter," returned the teacher.—St. Louis Republic.

The Spectacle of Its Lights From Rivers and Harbor.

By whatever route you reach or leave Manhattan Island in the evening the river lights are beautiful. On the North river the spectacle varies according to the hour and season, for the downtown lights in Manhattan are more numerous when the days are short and the tenants of the great office buildings have to light up to finish their day's work. Across from the lower Jersey ferries late in the afternoon of a winter day glow and sparkle the great company of tall shafts grouped against the sky, each one pierced to the top with regular rows of shining windows. A memorable sight they make, those shafts and huge blocks of gleaming holes, reaching far above their neighbors that come between them and the river. There is much in that spectacle to recompense a tired man for being a commuter, and nowhere else on earth is there the like of it.

And, besides the tall shafts and the intervening lower lights and the glow of the streets that run to the river and border it, there are all the river lights—the ferryboats, with their long rows of bright windows, hurrying on their various courses; the sound steamers going out, other steamers coming in; all manner of lights more sober on all manner of shipping; the street glare and the ferry house and wharf lights ashore, and, higher up, here and there the obtrusive and commercial but none the less radiant advertising signs.

The downtown office building lights go out early, most of them, but up the river some of the tall uptown hotels continue, all the evening and in spite of curtained windows, to be lighthouses.

On the East river, besides the city lights and the river lights, are the high, curving bridges, very striking and beautiful, with their unobstructed outlines marked by the glow of the electric bulbs.

There is poetry in these river lights, bordered and framed by the dark shining water and reflected in it.—E. S. Martin in Harper's.

Work and Fatigue.

What fatigues the motive power is getting to work. Once the mind is fascinated and the field of consciousness restricted to a single object the brain works without exhausting itself. Let us apply ourselves for a good time to whatever we do and have several hours of sustained labor. By quitting the task to dream, to smoke a cigarette or to watch a fly one becomes exhausted. —Paris Revue.

Women as Walkers.

Even the athletic girls and women of today can hardly make any advance upon the record of Mary Lamb, who wrote to Miss Wordsworth (both women being between fifty and sixty years old): "You say you can walk fifteen miles with ease. That is exactly my stint." She then speaks pityingly of a delicate woman who could accomplish "only four or five miles every third or fourth day, keeping very quiet between."

Manhattan Island.

Indians who accepted $24 from Governor Peter Minuit for Manhattan Island in 1626 did not make such a bad bargain, for if they had invested that sum of money at compound interest at the prevailing rates since then their heirs would now have $12,000,000,000.

AN INDIAN MYSTERY.

The White Woman Who Fought With the Tonto Apaches.

In 1864 Dr. Alsap and Lord Duppa, well known pioneers, were prospecting with a party in the Bradshaw mountains on the Hassayampa creek. One morning the party separated for the purpose of hunting. In going up a canyon, in which they were separated from their companions by high mountains, Duppa's detachment was attacked by a large band of Tonto Apaches. The whites gradually fought their way across the ridge with the hope of rejoining their companions. During the advance Duppa, who was stationed behind a rock, noticed that he was the particular mark of an Indian with a bow. Several arrows had fallen at his feet, and one struck him in the arm. Raising his rifle, he took aim, and just as he was touching the trigger the supposed Indian cried, "Don't shoot!" in good English, but it was too late, and the body fell over with life extinct. Soon after the two parties succeeded in forming a junction, and the Indians retreated, leaving the dead.

Out of curiosity the party returned to the place where Duppa killed the supposed Indian and found that it was a white woman, evidently about thirty years of age and dressed in all the paraphernalia of the Apaches. Investigation was made, but no trace of her former whereabouts could ever be obtained.

On Two Continents.

An Englishman, smoking a pipe, sat in a club car on a western train. There were several traveling men near by. They were discussing themselves and telling how good they were.

"I suppose," said one, "that I have about as long a trip as any one in the business. I go from Boston to San Francisco twice a year."

"Oh," said another, "I can beat that. I cross the continent twice every year, and I take in Canada."

The Englishman listened intently. He was interested. "By the way,' said one of the drummers to him, "what is your business?"

"Oh," the Englishman replied, "my name is Douglass, and I come from London. I am a traveling man myself."

"What is your line?"

"Carpets."

"Have you got much territory?"

"Oh, not much," the Englishman replied modestly. "Only North America and Africa."

Dense, Indeed.

Curate—I hear your husband has signed the pledge. Has he kept it to the letter? Parishioner—It wasn't a letter, sir; it were a card. Curate—I mean has he kept his pledge inviolate? Parishioner—No, sir; I've kept it in lavender in a drawer. Curate — I'm afraid you don't understand me. What I mean is—has he broken the pledge since he took it? Parishioner — He hasn't touched it, sir. I've kept it wrapped up in paper, and it's as good as new.

Then the curate gave it up as hopeless.—London Express.

Why They Cried.

"I say, mamma," said little Flossie, "why did Mrs. Brown cry at the wedding today?"

"Oh, because her dear daughter was getting married and leaving her."

"And why did Mrs. Jones cry?"

"Oh, because her dear son has left her."

"I see. And why did Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Simpson cry?"

"Oh, because they have ever so many daughters to get married and no sign of any of them going off."—Pearson's Weekly.

English Sunday Laws.

The most absurd of British laws is undoubtedly that forbidding a man pursuing his trade on Sunday. Apart from the moral aspect of the case, this law is constantly broken, and the cases being reported form an excellent advertisement for the lawbreaker.—London Telegraph.

Impartial Criticism.

A well known salesman entered a west end conservatory the other afternoon on business. A girl was playing a piano in an adjoining room. Suddenly she began Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," and the teacher conversing with the salesman paused to listen.

"Can't you stop that noise until I explain this to you?" broke in the man of business, who seemed to be a privileged character.

"That girl will be a great musician some day," replied the unruffled teacher. "She is naturally talented. Just listen."

"I don't agree with you," snapped the salesman. "She plays too fast and too loud. Who is she?"

"Your daughter," returned the teacher.—St. Louis Republic.

TROLLEY SLEEPING CARS.

One Dollar For a Berth From Illinois Points to St. Louis.

Sleeping cars will be placed in service Dec. 1 on electric car lines between central Illinois points and St. Louis, says a special dispatch from Bloomington, Ill. The price of a berth will be a dollar.

The cars are now in the shops of the company in Bloomington, Ill., ready for regular service. They cost $25,000 each and weigh 100,000 pounds. Each car has four 150 horsepower motors. They are of handsome equipment, and each can accommodate twenty persons.

These are the first interurban sleeping cars to reach Illinois, and the experiment will be watched with interest in transportation circles.

THE STAGE KISS.

What It Really Means Rather Than What It Seems to Be.

Stage kisses! No one but an actor or an actress can fully appreciate what they mean. The picture as presented to the audience is very pretty, but the vision which looms up before the eyes of the poor player is something like this:

A face covered with a coating of cold cream, which has been powdered over with a thick layer of pearl white or brunette powder, as the case may be. On the cheeks are daubs of rouge, which at that close range in no possible manner suggest, as they do to the audience, the rosy cheeks of a country lassie. Over the eyes is rubbed a little dark blue powder to make them poetical. The underlids are heavily pencilled, and a mark extends a quarter of an inch from the eye at the end. This makes them larger. Upon each separate lash is a bead of black cosmetic, which has the effect of making them heavy and long. The cherry lips, which to the audience the hero is eager to press to his own, are to his distorted vision at such close range only a gash of carmine painted into a Cupid's bow.

The actress sees before her a picture even less attractive, for ten chances to one the hero, in addition to his grease paint, wears a false mustache and is also "smelly" with tobacco. The glare of the footlights tones down this conglomeration of paint, and at a distance the faces are actually pretty, but upon close inspection they resemble nothing more than a very bad oil painting out of focus.

Falling Into Hole In Air.

One of the strange experiences of a balloonist is that of falling into "a hole in the air," which Mr. Rolker reports as follows: "So you continue sailing, enjoying the present with little thought of the startling surprises that may be before you. Ahead of you, unseen, may be what the balloonist calls a 'hole in the air,' resembling the vortex of a maelstrom, and down this you may literally fall at a rate which is terrifying until by sacrificing two or three bagfuls of sand at once your pilot checks your downward flight. But these 'holes' are scarce, and as a rule the atmosphere is of uniform carrying power."—American Magazine.

When Dogs Were Cooks.

"There was a time," said the antiquarian, "when dogs did our roasting for us—at least they kept the meat turning so it would not burn. 'Spit dogs' they were called, and we call their descendants 'spitz' to this day. Spit dogs were trained to turn the spits on which roasted chickens, beef, ducks and turkeys. The little fellows did their work well. They were never known to let a fowl burn or to snatch a mouthful or two from it. As late as 1816 spit dogs were employed in the old Philadelphia inns on Second and Third streets."

The Servant Question.

The proud millionaire entered his garage haughtily. "Francois," he said, "you took out the new sixty horsepower again last night without permission. I'm afraid I'll have to get another chauffeur."

"I wish you would, sir," Francois answered. "With those four big cars there's quite enough work for two of us."—New York Press.

Historic New York.

New York city has more points of historical interest than any other city on the continent, there being scores of them, extending from Fort Amsterdam, where the new custom house stands, at the Battery, on the south, to Fort George, Fort Washington and the Van Cortlandt manor house on the north.

Nicknames.

"It's funny how a nickname, given to one during one's boyhood, will stick to one throughout a lifetime," said a man recently. "The variety of nicknames is also amusing. If I were asked to explain the conditions, I should say that it was because the 'rest of the kids' didn't like the real names and just substituted others to suit themselves. For instance, a boy comes to school with a lengthy name that a fond mother has given him with no doubt in the world that he will bear it all his life. Usually her fond hopes are shattered and the little 'dear' will come home from school the proud possessor of such a 'hang-on' as Tip, Rip, Bull or Buck. And it sticks too."—Columbus Dispatch.

A Powerful Salve.

A man in Nebraska invented a new powerful double acting salve which shows powers never before exhibited by salves of any kind. The inventor accidentally cut off the tail of a tame wolf, and, immediately applying some of the salve to the stump, a new tail grew out. Then, picking up the old tail, he applied some of the salve to the raw end of that, and a wolf grew out, but he was a wild wolf and had to be shot.—Chicago Tribune.

Not a Diplomat.

Lady—Yes, I want a good parlor maid. Why did you leave your last place?

Applicant—The missus was too bossy, ma'am.

Lady—Too bossy!

Applicant—Yes, ma'am. She was always telling me to do things instead of asking me to do 'em.—Houston Post.

WOMAN'S ORIGIN.

The Story as It Is Told In an Old Sanskrit Legend.

Tradition says there was a scarcity of solid elements at the time of her creation.

At the beginning of time Twashtri, the Vulcan of the Hindoo mythology, created the world, but when he wished to create a woman he found that he had employed all his material in the creation of man. There did not remain one solid element. Then Twashtri, perplexed, fell into a profound meditation. He roused himself as follows:

He took the roundness of the moon, the undulations of the serpent, the intwining of climbing plants, the trembling of the grass, the slenderness of the rose vine and the velvet of the flower, the lightness of the leaf and the glance of the fawn, the gayety of the sun's rays and tears of the mist, the inconstancy of the wind and the timidity of the hare, the vanity of the peacock and the softness of the down on the throat of the swallow, the hardness of the diamond, the sweet flavor of honey and the cruelty of the tiger, the warmth of fire, the chill of snow, the chatter of the jay and the cooing of the turtledove. He united all these and formed a woman. Then he made a present of her to man.

Eight days later the man came to Twashtri and said:

"My lord, the creature you gave me poisons my existence. She chatters without rest, she takes all my time, she laments for nothing at all and is always ill."

And Twashtri received the woman again.

But eight days later the man came again to the god and said:

"My lord, my life is very solitary since I returned this creature. I remember she glanced at me from the corner of her eye, and she played with me, clung to me."

And Twashtri returned the woman to him.

Three days only passed, and Twashtri saw the man coming to him again.

"My lord," said he, "I do not understand exactly how, but I am sure the woman causes me more annoyance than pleasure. I beg of you to relieve me of her."

But Twashtri cried, "Go your way and do your best!"

And the man cried, "I cannot live with her!"

"Neither can you live without her," replied Twashtri.

And the man was sorrowful, murmuring: "Woe is me! I can neither live with her nor without her."—Chicago Record-Herald.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

It is always better to throw a bouquet than a pickle.

The friends who flatter us are the ones we say "understand" us.

Nobody knows much, but everybody should know enough not to go to law.

If you have a good opinion of yourself and wish others to have it, keep it to yourself.

No use talking, it is very hard to feel just right toward a friend after you have heard him praise your enemy.

We suppose it is "broadening" to travel for the reason that the traveler discovers what a lot of people there are on earth who never heard of him.

This is what the ambitions of life finally amount to—that a man may have a warm corner and enough to eat when he is old and that his final illness may be a brief one.—Atchison Globe.

From the Bountiful East.

A small proportion of the flora is indigenous. The majority came from the east, like all the great ideas on which our culture is founded, and were developed and improved on this classic soil. Italy received the lemon and the orange from the Semites, who in their turn had obtained them from India. The olive, the fig, the vine and the palm were grown by the Semites long before their cultivation penetrated to the west. The laurel and myrtle, indeed, are indigenous in Italy, but their use for ceremonial purposes came across the Mediterranean from the east. The home of the cypress is not in Italy, but in the Greek archipelago, northern Persia, Cilicia and Lebanon.—From Strasburger's "Riviera."

The Difference.

Small Boy—Pa, what is the difference between a pessimist and an optimist? Pa—Well, let me see if I can illustrate. You know I am often discouraged, and things don't look to me as if they'd ever go right. Well, at such times I can be said to be a pessimist. But years ago, when I was a young man, everything looked bright and rosy, and I was always hopeful. Then I was an optimist. Now, my son, can you understand the difference between a pessimist and an optimist? Small Boy—Oh, yes; one is married and the other isn't.—Harper's Weekly.

Mr. and Mrs. Bryan were thrown from their seats, but suffered no injury.

MISS JULIA MARLOWE

Heartily Approves of Peruna For the Nerves.

In a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., Miss Julia Marlowe, of New York City, writes the following:

"I am glad to write my endorsement of the great remedy, Peruna, as a nerve tonic. I do so most heartily."—Julia Marlowe.

Nervousness is very common among women. This condition is due to anemic nerve centers. The nerve centers are the reservoirs of nervous vitality. These centers become bloodless for want of proper nutrition.

This is especially true in the spring season. Every spring a host of invalids are produced as the direct result of weak nerves.

This can be easily obviated by using Peruna. Peruna strikes at the root of the difficulty by correcting the digestion.

Digestion furnishes nutrition for the nerve centers. Properly digested food furnishes these reservoirs of life with vitality which leads to strong, steady nerves, and thus nourishes life.

Peruna is in great favor among women, especially those who have vocations that are trying to the nerves.

Peruna furnishes the lasting vigor for the nerves that such people need.

Thousands of testimonials from women in all parts of the United States are being received every year. Such unsolicited evidence surely proves that Peruna is without an equal as a nerve tonic and a vital invigorator.

Buy a bottle of Peruna to-day. If you do not receive all the benefits from Peruna that you expected, write to Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

MAN KILLED AT THE ARMOR FARM

An Italians Life Crushed Out by a Hugh Rock.

John Martio, an Italian was struck on the head by a large rock that fell from the side of the quarries at the Armor Farm this morning about 11 o'clock. He was taken immediately to the Bellefonte hospital where his life ended within an hour and a half afterwards. He was a man about 30 years of age, has a wife and two small children. Another tragic death added to the many who have met the same fate while working in the quarries.

Taken to the Penitentiary.

With a ruined character and a blighted life Toner Hastings not quite 20 years of age was taken to the penitentiary this morning by Deputy Sheriff Reese. When asked about his people at home tears rolled down his cheeks and he said, "Mister I never really had a home, my mother died when I was a small baby, my father was killed and I was left alone in the world to knock for myself. I was DRUNK when I attempted the crime for which I must suffer the penalty. I have always worked in coal mines and had lots of friends when I had money, and I really was not to blame for what I tried to do. I don't know what I shall do after I serve my term of two years in prison but one sure thing I am going to try and be a man, and if I haven't enough will power to stop drinking I hope the Good Man will do away with me. The Salvation Army people who have been holding meetings at the jail are about the only friends I have beside the people connected with the jail, they treated me kind and I am going to live a good clean life and they deserve the credit for making me a better boy. I have'nt any thing more to say only I want to warn every young man to let rum alone or they to will meet the same fate as myself."

Hastings was sentenced by Judge Orvis to serve two years in the penitentiary at hard labor and solitary confinement.

Tyrone Equal to the Best—Nit.

Because the basket ball team at Tyrone beat the Johnstown boys by one point the Herald says the Tyrone basket ball team is equal to the best. Tell you what, when they played in Bellefonte the Academy boys certainly did put them on the "blink" and stung them to a score of 24-19, in favor of the boys on the Hill. Of course Johnstown's team is just an amatuer affair and any little school boys team could put the knocks to them. Our boys have won several games from Johnstown and run up big scores against them. They don't know how to play basket ball, do they boys?

An Inhuman Parent.

Louis Moore, of Bellefonte, has been arrested in Piqua, O., on the charge of deserting his three minor children. His son, Homer, aged 12, testified that since he was five years of age his father sent him out to steal, directing him where to go and what to take.

Among the things the boy is charged with stealing and which were recovered were a stepladder from the city hall and a leather belt from a sawmill, valued at $145.

General Wiley at Tyrone.

Brigadier General John A. Wiley of Franklin, commander of the Second Brigade, arrived in Tyrone Wednesday morning to inspect the proposed site for the annual encampment of the Second Brigade, National Guard of Pennsylvania, the coming summer. With him was Major L. A. Anshutz, brigade quartermaster, and R. R. Wolf, brigade sergeant, both of Pittsburg. General Wiley and his party were met by Captain L. E. Crawford and other officers of the Sheridan Troop, and citizens of the town and the conditions to be met in order to secure the encampment were discussed at the informal conference in the Tyrone club parlors Wednesday morning: In the afternoon a trip was made to Tipton, the proposed site and the grounds were thoroughly gone over and its advantages set forth. Assurance is already given that an abundant water supply will be conveniently at hand and in this respect very few sites can meet the requirements of the military camp. General Wiley will make his report to the adjutant general who will doubtless confirm whatever selection the brigade commander recommends.

Life Guards.

The Life Guards are two regiments of cavalry forming part of the British household troops. They are gallant soldiers, and every loyal British heart is proud of them. Not only the King's household, but yours, ours, everybody's should have its life guards. The need of them is especially great when the greatest foes of life, diseases, find allies in the very elements, as colds, influenza, catarrh, the grip, and pneumonia do in the stormy month of March. The best way that we know of to guard against these diseases is to strengthen the system with Hood's Sarsaparilla—the greatest of all life guards It removes the conditions in which these diseases make their most successful attack, gives vigor and tone to all the vital organs and functions, and imparts a genial warmth to the blood. Remember the weaker the system the greater the exposure to disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla makes the system strong.

Nearly Crushed His Life Out.

Aber McGary, a merchant and retiring president of the Vandergrift council, was perhaps fatally injured at the new Appolo skating rink at that place Saturday evening. Mr. McGary while skating about the floor, tripped and fell. Immediately behind him was a woman weighing more than 200 pounds. She fell on top of the prostrate man, who an instant later was under a crush of struggling skaters. A physician who was called to attend McGary found his pelvic bone was crushed. The injured man was removed to his home and little hopes are entertained for his recovery.

Don't let any one refuse to patronize the old soldiers.

Great Basket Ball Game to be Played.

The DuBois High School will play the Bellefonte Academy and the Y. M. C. A. basket ball teams the beginning of April This team is supposed to be one of the strongest in the state and to show their record we will publish their games played and won.

3rd Ward Hose Company	68 -17
Ridgeway High School	63 - 8
New Bethlehem High School	84 - 2
Johnsonburg	58 -13
Westville	28 -23
Brookville High School	39 -10
Falls Creek	49 -22
Johnstown (won)	39 -14
Patton	72 -14
Falls Creek	51 -26
Reynoldsville High School	34 19
Kane High School	60 -28
Local Y. M. C. A.	40 -28
	660-249

Now this is the proposition our boys are going up against but we feel sure they can sting this victorious team and send them back to DuBois like a lot of defeated soldiers. Why Johnstown swiped them all over the floor and won from them and didn't both the Y. M. C. A. and the Academy defeat Johnstown. Well I guess yes.

Our New Evangelist.

The presbytery of Huntingdon met at 7 o'clock Tuesday night in the Second Presbyterian church Altoona, and received the Rev. Samuel L. Boston from the presbytery of Pittsburg. At 7:30 p. m. the services of his induction into office as presbyterial evangelist opened, the Rev. Henry Howard, Stiles presiding. The Scripture lesson was read by the Rev. D. E. Hepler, chairman of the evangelistic committee. The Rev. R. P. Miller traced the steps leading to the appointment of Mr. Boston as presbyterial evangelist. Miss Lafferty rendered the organ voluntary and the address was made by the Rev. R. P. Miller on "Narrative of Steps Leading to the Calling of the Evangelist." The Rev. J. A. Platts of Bellefonte addressed the assemblage on "Charge to the Evangelist." Address on "Charge to the Presbytery" was delivered by the Rev. E. M. Bowman. The services closed with an address by the Rev. S. S. Boston on "Power for Service."

The new evangelist will begin a ten days' series of services in the Second Presbyterian chapel of Altoona on March 20th, closing on the evening of Easter Day.

A "Texas Ranger."

The popularity of Western plays is markedly shown by the number New York successes this evening. No less than twelve of the big Metropolitan hits were made with plays dealing with Western life.

A Texas Ranger is a pretty story full of absorbing heart interest depicking life on the plains. The comedy element of the play is of the clean unctious homely kind so much appreciated by the theatre going public of today. It is not an untried play but one which has been in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and Chicago, now being presented with the same strong cast.

"A Texas Ranger" will be seen at the Garman opera house Friday March 15th, prices 25, 35, and 50 cents.

Wheeling Club at the Academy.

The Bellefonte Academy has in the neighborhood of one hundred young men attending school there, from all over the United States. It is considered one of the best preparatory schools in the country. The young men from the city of Wheeling, West Virginia, have organized a club called The Wheeling Club of the Bellefonte Academy. It is composed of the following gentlemen: Messrs. Wilson, Grubb pres.; Albert Schenk, Jr, vice pres. Clyde McCarty, secy., Townsend Frazier treas., Albert Doepkin, William Schenk, George Row, George Hornbrook, Clarence Bolton, John South, Carl Eis, Paul Marwell and L. K. Taylor.

Alazy liver may be only a tired liver, or a starved liver. A stick is all right or the back of a lazy man. But it would be a savage as well as a stupid thing to beat a weary man or a starving man because he lagged in his work So in treating the lagging liver it is a great mistake to lash it with drastic drugs. Ninety-nine cases out of a hundred a torpid or sluggish liver it is but a symptom of an ill-nourished body, whose organs are weary with over-work. Let your liver alone. Start with the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition. Put them in proper working order, and see how quickly your liver will become active and energetic. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has made many marvelous cures of "liver trouble" by its wonderful control of the organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores the normal activity of the stomach. Increases the secretions of the blood making glands, cleanses the system from poisonous accumulations, and so relieves the liver of the burdens imposed upon it by the defection of other organs. Beautiful Hair At Small Cost

Within the last decade great and rapid strides have been made in Materia Medica Many diseases that were considered incurable fifteen years ago are now in a few days, and in many cases prevented altogether The scientists of late years have been delving for the cause the foundation, the reason and the starting point of disease, fully realizing that the actual and true cause must be ascertained before their medy can be located. Hair troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp, and wholly dependent upon its action The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by scalp drying up, or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment, and when baldness occurs the scalp has simply lost all its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon (a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions).

The natural and logical thing to do in either case is, feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

Dr. Knowlton's Danderine is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is identical with the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp. It feeds and nourishes the hair and does all the work originally carried on by the natural nutrients or life-giving juices generated by the scalp itself. It penetrates the pores of the scalp quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderful exhilarating and life-producing qualities.

One twenty-five cent bottle is enough convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself. Now on sale at every drug and toilet store in the land. Three sizes, 25c, 50c and 1.00.

The Return.

"I believe," said the cherry philosopher, "that for every single thing you give away two come back to you."

"That's my experience," said Phamley. "Last June I gave away my daughter, and she and her husband came back to us in August."

PERSONAL FAILURE.

People Who Are Always Driving Success Away From Them.

One of the strangest paradoxes in human nature is that men and women struggling, apparently with all their might, to succeed are yet constantly doing things, saying things and thinking things which drive the very success they are after away from them. They are all the time counteracting their efforts by some foolishness or weakness or indiscretion. They are saying things which prejudice people against them and doing things which destroy confidence. Although they apparently try very hard to build a foundation, they are all the time undermining themselves.

Men work like Trojans to get a coveted position and then, by getting puffed up with conceit or by some foolish or weak act, knock the scaffolding, which they have been years in building, out from under them, and down they go. Their lives are a series of successive climbs and tumbles, so that they never get anywhere, never accomplish anything worth while. Always tripping themselves up, neutralizing their work—this is their greatest stumbling block.

I know a powerful editorial writer who wields a strong, vigorous pen, but who at sixty years of age is just where he was at twenty. He has had scores of good positions, but he could not keep them because of his indiscretions, because of a hot temper and a sensitive nature which was always being wounded by trifles. There is no harder worker than he is. Every time he gets knocked down he begins at the bottom and starts planning and reclimbing, only to fall back again like the fabled frog trying to get out of the well.

Now, if this man had taken an inventory of himself in his youth and strengthened two or three little weak points, he would have been a giant in the field of letters.

There are thousands of men who are working as clerks or in very ordinary salaried positions who might have been employers or proprietors themselves but for some unfortunate weakness, some little deficiency in their natures or some peculiarity—something which might have been remedied by a little discipline and self study in youth. It is not an unusual thing to see a man in some subordinate situation who but for one of these little lacks would have been a bolder man than his employer. And so he has to submit to the humiliation of plodding through life in a mediocre position when he feels conscious that he has superior ability to those who are over him.

It is tragic to see thousands of people constantly pushing away from themselves through life the very success they are trying to achieve, pushing it away because they do not control a hot temper, because of some little indiscretion or other weakness or lack in their nature.

Others are always driving success away from them by their doubts, their fears, their lack of courage, their lack of confidence; driving it away by thought habits which repel success conditions. They never make themselves magnets to attract success, but keep so many enemies of achievement in their mind that there is no home for harmony there, no place for a strong purpose. They hold the failure thought, the doubt thought, the poverty thought, instead of clinging to the success thought, the thought of abundance, until they attract achievement and plenty. —Success Magazine.

Bodily Proportions.

In the man of average stature the height of the body is ten times the length of the face, the face from the chin to the hair is as long as the hand, the arm is four times the length of the face, the sole of the foot is one-sixth the length of the body, and six times the thickness of the hand in the thickest part equals the thickness of the body.

Discretion.

He (to servant)—I understand that you have dared to drive my automobile during my absence. Servant—Don't be vexed, sir. I was very careful. I ran over two persons, but they were very old.—Jugend.

Of Course.

"Walter, how long do you keep your eggs here?"

"Why, until some one eats them, sir, of course."—Annales.

How to Enjoy Whist.

Get yourself roped into a game as partner to some one who helped Hoyle write his book. The other two players must also be experts. Start in pleasantly to enliven the game with a few well chosen anecdotes, now and then making the wrong play. After your partner has slapped your ears and sworn at you and put the black curse on you and all your ancestry and called you a fool a few times you will awake to the real joy of the gentle and intellectual game. We have tried this several times, but not at frequent intervals, and we can guarantee its efficacy. —Chicago News.

The Wings of Time.

Methuselah was walking in his garden.

"My goodness," he exclaimed suddenly, "there's another flower on that century plant! Why, it seems but yesterday since I plucked a blossom from it."

He walked slowly toward an oak tree 200 years old which he had tenderly raised from an acorn.

"Ah, me," he mused, "how time flies!"—Harper's Weekly.

The Taking Cold Habit

The old cold goes; a new one quickly comes. It's the story of a weak throat, weak lungs, a tendency to consumption. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral breaks up the taking-cold habit. It strengthens, soothes, heals. Ask your doctor about it.

Fight Against Child Slavery.

A. J. BEVERIDGE.

The child labor problem has been brought to the front in America recently by the discussion in the senate on the subject, by the strong recommendations of Governor Charles E. Hughes in his first message to the legislature of New York and by President Roosevelt's letter to the Consumers' league of New York regarding the evils incident to the employment of those of tender years in industrial establishments.

The bill introduced in the senate by Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana has been much discussed in the press, and the question of the wisdom of national legislation on the subject has been raised. Some claim that it is a problem whose solution can best be left entirely to the individual states. Senator Beveridge challenged attention by his statement that there are now nearly 2,000,000 breadwinners under fifteen years of age in the United States and that of these almost 700,000 are engaged in work other than agriculture. "Child labor on the farm is good," says the senator. "This bill does not strike at that. It strikes only at child slavery in factories, mines and sweatshops."

Senator Beveridge's plan of getting at the child labor evil is to prohibit by federal statute any interstate commerce in articles which are the product of such labor. Some who recognize the force of the senator's arguments against child labor maintain that the states should be left to put reforms on this subject in execution and that his bill would, if enacted into law, be a step in the direction of centralization and an unwise extension of the federal power. In reply to these contentions Senator Beveridge urges that, while in some states there are good laws against child labor, in others the laws are either inefficient or poorly enforced and that the matter as a national evil can only be dealt with adequately by a national law.

BREAKER BOY OF COAL MINES.

Child labor laws exist already in many states, and in several new governors inaugurated in January made recommendations as to such legislation.

The factory inspector of Pennsylvania in a recent address stated that in the tobacco making establishments of Pittsburg children as young as eight and nine years could be found at work.

Missouri has an anti child labor law, but the labor unions are agitating for its amendment and more rigid enforcement of the statute.

Senator Beveridge illustrated his speech in the senate with photographs showing the conditions amid which children sometimes work. He points out that as the result of labor under such conditions many die, while others grow up dwarfed, crooked and weak, their minds dulled and clouded and their souls darkened and vicious. He maintains that many more children are employed in factories than the census figures show. The senator tells of a tiny girl seven years old who worked twelve hours a day in a canning factory in Maryland, a state having over 200 establishments employing children. John Spargo, author of "The Bitter Cry of the Children," tells of a little girl in Atlanta, Ga., who said, "When I work nights I's too tired to undress when I gets home, and so I goes to bed with my clothes on."

The noted writer, H. G. Wells, says: "In Massachusetts little naked boys are packing cloth into bleaching vats in a bath of chemicals that bleaches their little bodies like the bodies of lepers. In the south there are six times as many children at work as twenty years ago, in Pennsylvania children of ten and twelve stoop over chutes and pick out slate, and in Illinois they stand ankle deep in blood, cleaning intestines and trimming meat."

When the Disease Let Go.

An old man was just recovering from an operation, and as he lay regaining consciousness he heard the doctor say to a nurse regarding some powders to be given him, "If one every hour is too much give him a half one every half hour." The old gentleman raised himself up on his elbow and said:

"Say, doc, that reminds me of a man that had a Newfoundland dog. His wife got so tired of having him (the dog, not the man) track up the floors and porches that finally she made her husband take the dog to town and sell him. That afternoon he returned radiant. 'Well,' he said, 'I've sold him for $25!' 'Good!' cried his wife. 'I can get that hat now.' 'But,' continued the man, 'I bought two puppies with the money.'"

The doctor looked at the nurse and said:

"I think he'll recover."

Sacred Monkeys of India.

In "Living Animals of the World" some curious stories are told about the habits and characteristics of the monkey tribes. It seems that the entellus monkey is the most sacred of all in India. It is gray above and nutty brown below, long legged and active, a thief and an impudent robber. In one of the Indian cities they became such a nuisance that the faithful determined to catch and send away some hundreds. This was done, and the holy monkeys were deported in covered carts and released many miles off. But the monkeys were too clever. Having thoroughly enjoyed their ride, they refused to part with the carts and, hopping and grimacing, came leaping all the way back beside them to the city, grateful for their outing. One city obtained leave to kill the monkeys, but the next city then sued them for "killing their deceased ancestors."

The Kind You Have Always Bought

EASY DOOR FASTENERS.

Only One Kind of Lock the Expert Burglar Can't Pick.

"There's only one lock in the world that I can't open if you'll give me a few minutes at it, and as for ordinary door and drawer locks, I'll open them as easily as if there was no lock there. Any expert burglar can do the same."

The foregoing statement was made by an experienced locksmith of Kansas City.

"Few persons know how insecure their homes are," he continued. "Few persons realize that the average lock is absolutely worthless for keeping out an experienced burglar. The ordinary door lock is good for nothing but reminding casual business or social callers that they must ring to be admitted. None of these ordinary 'door fasteners,' and that's the best you can call them, will deter a burglar two whole minutes. If there's no key in the lock, he soon fits one to it. If there is a key in the lock, he inserts a pair of pinchers and in ten seconds has it opened. Understand me, I am speaking of the experienced burglar. The clumsy burglar is the one who gets in trouble. He'll fumble around with a lock until somebody hears him. There is only one unpickable lock made. That's the six pin lock used by the government. It will defy any expert. There are six little steel pins in the lock, which have to be raised just a certain distance to open it. Some of the pins are one-fourth of an inch long and some of them a half inch. If one of the pins lacks even a hairbreadth of being raised the proper distance, the lock will not open. It baffles all the experts."

This locksmith is so expert he can open the majority of safes by putting his ear to the combination and listening to how the tumblers click into place as he turns it.

"I intended at one time to be a burglar," this locksmith declares. "I had it all planned out—even had a set of burglar's tools made. Then I decided that honesty was the best policy, and I stuck to my trade."—Kansas City Star.

"LUCKY" BALDWIN.

His Whirlwind of Speculation In the Mining Regions.

In 1853 a little party of gold seekers with a meager outfit of horses and wagons started for California from the village of Racine, Wis. In command of this adventurous expedition was a young man who took with him his wife and infant daughter. His name was E. J. Baldwin and he made a wise choice in shaking from his restless feet the dust of a tamer civilization. He needed a larger theater of action for his pent-up and surging activities. While trailing through the mountains of Utah the pioneers were attacked by Indians, who were beaten off during a six hour fight in which young Baldwin killed their chief. After six months of hardship the party reached Hangtown (later called Placerville), in California.

Here Baldwin tarried and began placer mining. He appears to have been no more than an ordinary red shirted argonaut, meeting the ups and downs of mining luck until the discovery of the Comstock lode at Virginia City. Thither he drifted and discovered that his natural bent was gambling with the mines that other men had opened. Amid a whirlwind of speculation he fought his way with such success that he loomed from the smoke in a few months as "Lucky" Baldwin, the man who had cleaned up $7,500,000 in the gigantic deals in the stock of the Ophir mines.

San Francisco was the Mecca of those lucky sons of fortune who were rearing a great city by the Golden Gate. As a stock and mining speculator "Lucky" Baldwin shone resplendent, but he was also a loyal son of San Francisco. He built hotels and theaters and business blocks even while he was amazing that far from conservative community by madly freakish extravagances.

In a very lucid interval he bought all the Spanish grants he could find near Los Angeles and there spent a million in making this ranch of his not only a splendidly productive property, but also one of the most beautiful estates ever laid out in this or any other country. It was his hobby, his pet, and he planted miles of avenues with noble shade trees and made wonderful tropical gardens, surrounding his home by a paradise of vernal beauty.—Ralph D. Paine in Outing Magazine.

Don't say wonderment when wonder will express your meaning.

Don't say "My politics are." Politics is singular in spite of the final s.

Don't say people when you mean persons. People is a collective noun, in the singular number.

Don't say flapdoodle words, for even when properly employed your meaning will not be so clear to the reader as when you use simple words.

Don't say receipt when you mean recipe. The collector to whom you pay money gives you a receipt. A formula for the preparation of food is a recipe.

Don't say surprised when you mean astonished. You may be astonished to find Johnny stealing jam, but he is surprised by you.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

RACY MRS. ATHERTON.

The Brilliant Author's Reply to an English Editor's Offer.

So many people in England swear by the London Times that when Gertrude Atherton, the California novelist, told its editor that he might "go to the devil" her boldness caused a sensation, to put it mildly, in British literary circles. Mrs. Atherton, who is a great-grandniece of Benjamin Franklin, is accustomed to making daring flights in fiction, and a departure from the conventional in the use of language is right in her line. There had been a controversy in the Times' book department over the price at which the author's latest novel, "Rezanov," has sold in England, and the editor had offered to publish it at 2 shillings instead of 6, the present price. It sells in the United States for 50 cents. The Times editor thought it would bring the novelist larger royalties if also sold in England at a cheaper price. Mrs. Atherton finally wrote to the London journal's head:

GERTRUDE ATHERTON.

"With my publisher, Murray, I will remain as long as he will have me and hereby invite you and all your subordinates in my second best Californiaese to go to the devil. I am sick of the whole controversy and am too busy with my new book to bother with you any further."

Mrs. Atherton, who has been a widow for some years and now lives abroad, has always had a mind of her own. She says of her girlhood:

"When I was a little bit of a girl I used to long for adventure. I would run away from our little ranch and plunge into the woods. My mother would send somebody to hunt for me, which was a wild goose chase. When I chose to be found I would be. Then I was carried back and spanked. Every day I got a spanking. Oh, I was dreadfully spoiled, as bad as I could be."

HABITS OF THE RICH.

Samples of Millionaire Extravagance In the Metropolis.

Zola in his youth, before fame came to him, wrote some stories about millionaires, wherein it seemed to him he exaggerated shamefully in his descriptions of the costly homes and habits of the rich, but later on, when Zola became a friend of millionaires, he found that his accounts of their extravagance had fallen far short of the truth.

In the same way stories about the extravagance of American millionaires that sound like exaggerations may also fall short of the truth. Here, for instance, are some facts that an interior decorator of New York supplied the other day. They sound extreme, but let Zola be remembered.

A man bought for his hall twelve antique marble columns at Pompeii. Finding he could use only eight of the columns he had the remaining four destroyed, although he was offered for them twice what he had paid. He had paid $5,000 apiece.

Aubusson carpets, with a pile three inches thick, are often made to order at a cost of $40 a yard. Such a cost, though, is nothing beside what is ordinarily paid for antique rugs. They, measured by the yard, often cost $500 or $600 a yard.

Chairs of ivory inlaid with wood are occasionally sold at $500 apiece.

One millionaire's piano cost $150,000. A five inch band of ivory, four years in the carving, runs around the case, which was decorated by Everett Shinn.

The gold and silver plate of one household requires an expert to look after it. The man is a goldsmith, and his salary is $2,000 a year.

Billiard rooms sometimes cost $50,000 to furnish. The tables and cues are inlaid with ivory and gold.

Certain wines—Schloss Johannesberg, for instance, stamped with the crest of Prince Matternich—are sold at private sales to millionaires for $40 and $50 a bottle.

Automobiles of ninety or more horsepower, made to order, will cost from $30,000 to $40,000. Some millionaires keep a dozen or more automobiles, with a head chauffeur at $4,000 or $5,000 a year salary and two or three assistants at $25 a week each.

Then there is the ocean going yacht, which cannot be maintained in the most modest way at a smaller annual expenditure than $25,0[illegible]—New York Press.

Not an Ancestor.

Papa was carefully studying the family history in the big Bible when his nine-year-old daughter surprised him by saying, "Papa, was Aunt Ann one of your Ann-sisters?"

HIDDEN DANGER.

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Bellefonte Citizen Can Afford to Ignore.

Danger Signal No. 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy or a thick, red, ill-smelling urine, full of ediment and irregular of passage.

Danger Signal No. 2 comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick kidneys and warn you of the coming of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cures sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Here's Bellefonte proof.

Mrs. Nancy Davis, of 246 East Logan Street, says: "I suffered a bad fall some years ago when living in Rochester. I thought at first that I had broken my back. I was unable to get up without assistance and from that time I suffered for years with a weak back and excruciating pains through the loins and through the small of my back. Sometimes I was completely prostrated and helpless. Doctors and medicines failed to help me and the pain continued until I got Doan's Kidney Pills. I took only a few doses before I began to feel better and when I had continued using them for a while I was thoroughly cured. My back regained its strength and the pain left me. I have had no return of the trouble since."

Given Up To Die

B. Spiegel, 1204 Virginia St,, Evansville, Ind., writes: "For over five years I was troubled with kidney and bladder affections which caused me much pain and worry. I lost flesh and was all run down, and a year ago had aban ton work entirely. I had three of the best physicians who did me no good and I was practically given up to die, Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended and the first bottle gave me great relief, and after taking the second bottle I was entirely cured." why not let it help you? C. M. Parrish.

are caused by Indigestion. If you eat a little too much, or if you are subject to attacks of Indigestion, you have no doubt had shortness of breath, rapid heart beats, heartburn or palpitation of the heart.

Indigestion causes the stomach to expand—swell, and puff up against the heart. This crowds the heart and interferes with its action, and in the course of time the heart becomes diseased.

Encampment to be Held at Tyrone in July.

ENTIRE 2nd BRIGADE.

Composed of Five Regiments of Which the Fighting Fifth is a Part. Company B. Boys Will Likely March to Camp.

BELLEFONTE WOULD BE THE PLACE.

The annual encampment of the Second brigade, N G. P. will be held this year during the last week of July and early days of August, at Tyrone, seventeen miles east of Altoona. Invitations had been received from New Castle and Tyrone. Major "Lew" A. Anshutz, brigade quarter master, made arrangements for visiting each of these places. He and General John A. Wiley were to have left for New Castle yesterday morning, when a letter was received from Captain J. V. Cunningham, of Troop F. in which it was stated that a suitable location could not be obtained.

With New Castle eliminated, the only place extending an invitation is Tyrone. Major Anshutz, accompanied by R. R Wolf, brigade quarter master sergeant, left for that place last night and will meet General Wiley there this morning, to look over sites.

Bellefonte would have been a much better place than Tyrone, and to think of the great financial benefit it would have been to our business men. It would have meant thousands of dollars in their pockets.

Total number of eggs for February, 896. Is 74½ dozen. Highest number of eggs laid in any one day, 46 The last week in February gathered 23 dozen, which were sold at 25 cents per dozen, or $5.75 for the week."

Place of Residences Changed.

On or before the 1st of April the following changes will take place in Bellefonte. H. C. Jones has rented the Harper house on Thomas street now occupied by D. Wagner Geiss; L. H. Musser will move from Bishop street to the Potter house on Spring street vacated by Mr. Jones; Mrs. Jane Musser will move into the Bartruff house now owned by Mrs. Page; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Donachy will move into the McClure house now occupied by George Sunday and family and the latter will move to a house in Bush's Addition; William Barnhart will move into the house vacated by the Donachys, while William Sauers will move into the house where Barnharts now live.

Verdict for Dr. Pierce

AGAINST THE

Ladies' Home Journal.

Sending truth after a lie. It is an old maxim that "a lie will travel seven leagues while truth is getting its boots on," and no doubt hundreds of thousands of good people read the unwarranted and malicious attack upon Dr. R. V. Pierce and his "Favorite Prescription" published in the May (1904) number of the Ladies' Home Journal, with its great black display headings, who never saw the humble, groveling retraction, with its inconspicuous heading, published two months later. It was boldly charged in the slanderous and libelous article that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, for the cure of woman's weaknesses and ailments, contained alcohol and other harmful ingredients. Dr. Pierce promptly brought suit against the publishers of the Ladies' Home Journal, for $200,000.00 damages.

Dr. Pierce alleged that Mr. Bok, the editor, maliciously published the article containing such false and defamatory matter with the intent of injuring his business; furthermore, that no alcohol, or other injurious, or habit-forming, drugs are, or ever were, contained in his "Favorite Prescription"; that said medicine is made from native medicinal roots and contains no harmful ingredients whatever, and that Mr. Bok's malicious statements were wholly and absolutely false.

In the retraction printed by said Journal they were forced to acknowledge that they had obtained analyses of "Favorite Prescription," from eminent chemists, all of whom certified that it did not contain alcohol or any of the alleged harmful drugs.

These facts were also proven in the trial of the action in the Supreme Court. But the business of Dr. Pierce was greatly injured by the publication of the libelous article with its great display headings, while hundreds of thousands who read the wickedly defamatory article never saw the humble groveling retraction, set in small type and made as inconspicuous as possible. The matter was, however brought before a jury in the Supreme Court of New York State which promptly rendered a verdict in the Doctor's favor. Thus his traducers came to grief and their base slanders were refuted.

The Cooking of Food.

There is no reason in the world why men, whether average men or men of genius, should despise the cooking of their food. They never show, or are required to show, the same contempt toward any other art, and on no other is their mental calm more completely dependent. An ill fitting coat is a worry, but not such a worry as dinners perpetually ill dressed. To many men, and especially to men whose work is sedentary or whose brains are fully taxed, food which is at once light and nourishing is an absolute necessity if they are to exert their highest powers, and food of that kind is obtainable only by care in selecting meats and good cooking when they are selected. A man should not think too much of his dinner or devote too much time to preparation for it or enjoy it too visibly when it has arrived, for all those are animal peculiarities. But to remain content with bad food, when a little more thought or carefulness or criticism would procure it in a state fit to be eaten, is only what Scotchmen used to describe as "a wasting of the maircies."—London Spectator.

Cheerful Advice.

A number of railway men were once discussing the question of accidents.

"The roads in Scotland," said one official, "used to have a bad name, indeed, in respect to accidents. No one thought of embarking on a railway journey unless he had provided himself with an accident policy of insurance.

"The famous Dr. Norman Macleod was once about to set off on a long journey through the Scotch country. Just as the train was pulling out the clergyman's servant put his head in through the window and said:

"'Ha'e ye ta'en an insurance ticket, sir?'

"'I have,' replied the doctor.

"'Then,' continued the servant, 'write ye'er name on it and gi'e it to me. They ha'e an awfu' habit o' robbin' the corpses on this line.'" — New York Times.

Think Lightly of It.

The road to home happiness is said to lie over small stepping stones. So small sometimes are the causes of our unhappiness that we wonder the consequences can be so great. One great palliative is the determination by every member of the family not to dwell on the circumstances, whatever they may be, which are alike sad to all. If it be poverty, go to it cheerfully and silently borne; if it be the ill temper of grandpa try to make a joke of it. If it be something infinitely worse and also hopeless accept it bravely; do not talk of it. Try in the family circle to ignore the little enlivening circumstance. Let in the sun and air. Work on cheerily and hopefully, knowing that there is the ray of sunshine somewhere that has only to be looked for to be found.

Squeezing the Grapes.

"In wine making," said a wine expert, "the grapes are squeezed from one to six times, and from each squeeze a different grade of wine is made." That is why from one district and from one firm so many varieties of wine come. These varieties don't mean that each is made from a different kind of grape. They mean, as a rule, that they are made from different squeezes of the same grape. The first squeeze of course makes the best and dearest wine. When you buy this grade you will always find on the label the words 'Premier Cru,' first squeeze."

Tricks of the Types.

A laughable error occurred in one of the large publishing houses a number of years ago. A poet had sent in a manuscript in which was the line, "See the pale martyr in a sheet of fire." The reputation of the writer was nearly ruined when the work came out with the line, "See the pale martyr with his shirt on fire."

When a favorite speaker rose and was greeted with thunderous applause his party paper came out and said, "The vast concourse rent the air with their snouts."

More Exciting.

Tout—Has Jones quit the race track because of reform, or what? Jockey—Reform nothing! He wanted something more uncertain to bet his money on. Tout—But what could be find more uncertain than a horse race? Jockey—He's taken to betting whether or not the weather man will correctly predict the day's condition.—Florida Times-Union.

Not Cheap.

Aged Husband—You are going to ruin me with your extravagance. You don't need that cape any more than a cat needs two tails. How often have I told you never to buy anything because it is cheap? Young Wife (with an air of one who has got the better of the argument)—But it was not cheap. It cost 10 guineas.—London Fun.

In a New Light.

Fair Visitor—So you have really decided not to sell your house? Fair Hostess—Yes. You see, we placed the matter in the hands of a real estate agent. After reading his lovely advertisement of our property neither John nor myself could think of parting with such a wonderful and perfect home.

Only One Objection.

Some sage said that "life would be tolerable if it were not for its amusements." Many people give most cordial assent to this dictum. No objection can justly be made to it except that it is not true.—London Saturday Review.

Better Cigar Values at Lower Prices Than Ever Sold Before

Exclusive Brands; Unvarying Quality; Proper Condition

NATIONAL CIGAR STANDS

Important News for Smokers

Here's the National Cigar Stands' Proposition

Some 2,000 American druggists (the undersigned included in the number), have united in a new plan for conducting the cigar branch of their business.

Heretofore, each store has bought its cigars independently; usually from jobbers and in quantities necessarily small. The prices paid were loaded with from four to six unnecessary profits and were always on a small-quantity basis besides.

Now, these 2,000 stores have concentrated their cigar-buying power in a single, co-operative concern—the National Cigar Stands Company. These 2,000 stores and the National Cigar Stands Company which must provide them with cigars, becomes the largest single customer for tobacco ever known in the history of the cigar business.

Constitute The Greatest Retail Cigar Outlet On Earth

The commercial advantage of a large purchasing power is well-known. The National Cigar Stands Company takes at once a masterful position in the tobacco market. It can, and does, own its own brands, control its own factories, make its own prices. In all this it merely acts for the druggists who own it, and each store gets the full benefit of all the advantages acquired and all the savings effected.

SOME N. C. S. EXCLUSIVE BRANDS

Unequaled in Quality for Price in the History of Cigar Retailing!

Black & White:	equal to best 3 for 25c. seed-and-Havana	5c
College Days:	best domestic cigar ever sold at	6 for 25c
Adad	a first-class domestic cigar, presenting superior workmanship	7 for 25c
Lord Carver:	best Havana-Sumatra cigar ever made	3 for 25c
Cuba-Roma:	all clear Havana, usually sold at 3 for 25c.	5c
La Idalia:	choice clear Havana—a wide favorite at	3 for 25c
El Carvajal:	highest grade imported Havana	10c and up

The saving in manufacturing and buying is almost equaled in the saving in selling expense. The distribution from producer to retailer being direct, there is no expense for jobbers or traveling salesmen. There is little or no rent to be charged on the prices of cigars by National stands and no extra salaries for salespeople.

In brief, the cigars come to the National stands free of all middlemen's profits and can be sold practically free of expense. Between producer and smoker there are but two small profits instead of the usual five to six big ones. The result of this double saving is this:

Never Before Have Cigars Been Sold So Close to Cost of Production

The proof of this will be found in the cigars now offered for sale. They give a quality never before known at the prices asked. The brands are all the exclusive production of, by and for the National Cigar Stands. Let them speak for themselves.

All National Stands are equipped with a new and scientifically designed storage case which constantly and automatically maintains the proper atmospheric conditions necessary to keep the cigars at their best.

It isn't a National Cigar Stand unless the National's emblem is in the window.

Falling Into Hole In Air.

One of the strange experiences of a balloonist is that of falling into "a hole in the air," which Mr. Rolker reports as follows: "So you continue sailing, enjoying the present with little thought of the startling surprises that may be before you. Ahead of you, unseen, may be what the balloonist calls a 'hole in the air,' resembling the vortex of a maelstrom, and down this you may literally fall at a rate which is terrifying until by sacrificing two or three bagfuls of sand at once your pilot checks your downward flight. But these 'holes' are scarce, and as a rule the atmosphere is of uniform carrying power."—American Magazine.

When Dogs Were Cooks.

"There was a time," said the antiquarian, "when dogs did our roasting for us—at least they kept the meat turning so it would not burn. 'Spit dogs' they were called, and we call their descendants 'spitz' to this day. Spit dogs were trained to turn the spits on which roasted chickens, beef, ducks and turkeys. The little fellows did their work well. They were never known to let a fowl burn or to snatch a mouthful or two from it. As late as 1816 spit dogs were employed in the old Philadelphia inns on Second and Third streets."

The Servant Question.

The proud millionaire entered his garage haughtily. "Francois," he said, "you took out the new sixty horsepower again last night without permission. I'm afraid I'll have to get another chauffeur."

"I wish you would, sir," Francois answered. "With those four big cars there's quite enough work for two of us."—New York Press.

Her Recommendation.

A girl working as a servant told the housewife, "I'm going away, mom."

Said the woman indignantly: "Suppose some one writes me for a recommendation, what shall I tell them?"

Said the girl: "Tell them, mom, I stood it with you for a week. That recommend is good enough for me."

Constipation

Baked sweet apples, with some people, bring prompt relief for Constipation. With others, coarse all-wheat bread will have the same effect. Nature undoubtedly has a vegetable remedy to relieve every ailment known to man, if physicians can but find Nature's way to health. And this is strikingly true with regard to Constipation.

The bark of a certain tree in California—Cascara Sagrada—offers a most excellent aid to this end. But, combined with Egyptian Senna, Slippery Elm Bark, Solid Extract of Prunes, etc., this same Cascara bark is given its greatest possible power to correct constipation. A toothsome Candy Tablet, called Lax-ets, is now made at the Dr. Shoop Laboratories, from this ingenuous and most effective prescription. Its effect on Constipation, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath, Sallow Complexion, etc., is indeed prompt and satisfying.

No griping, no unpleasant after effects are experienced, and Lax-ets are put up in beautiful lithographed metal boxes at 5 cents and 25 cents per box.

College Students to Play Here.

The Thespians, the dramatic organization of The Pennsylvania State College is scheduled to give a performance here on Friday evening March the 22nd. The play which they will present is a roaring farce comedy in three acts entitled "The Brixton Burglary," and is resplendant with bright sayings and grotesque situations, in fact, all the critics are unanimous in their praise of the play and all declare that it is the best one that this noted troupe has ever given.

Several of last year's favorites are still in the cast, and great care has been exercised to secure only the most fitted talent in the college to fill the vacant parts. The company is being instructed by the most skilled professional trainer that it is possible to obtain and daily rehearsals are now being held. The company has been elaborately costumed by a well known Philadelphia house; the management realizes the importance of this department and has not limited time or money in fitting it up properly.

Besides the regular play, the Thespians will bring along the celebrated "Penn State Quartet" which will render several selections during the evening an attraction well worth the price of admission. The instrumental music for the occasion will be furnished by the orchestra of twelve pieces, an organization which has gained a reputation all over the state for its proficiency. These three attractions combined should offer an entertainment which nobody in town can well afford to miss.

The list of places to be visited by the Thespians is as follows: State College, Thursday March 21st; Bellefonte, Friday March 22nd; Lock Haven, Saturday March 23rd; Clearfield, Monday, March 25th; Johnstown, Tuesday March 26th. Be sure attend and enjoy a good evening of rare fun. Prices 25, 35, and 50 cents. Curtain at 8:30.

Glee Club Entertainment.

The Y. M. C. A. Glee Club made its second appearance in public in a high class entertainment held in the Petrikin Hall Tuesday evening.

The lawn party scene was repeated by request, but (with the exception of the glees) a complete change of program was presented. Dr. J. Allison Platts, was easily the star of the occasion, his fine tenor voice being heard in solos, duets and quartetts, to the great pleasure of all present.

Mr. Henry Brown sang two beautiful bass solos, and also accompanied the patriotic songs with his drum. That distant bugle call was the work of Mr. F. R. Busseler, to whom also thanks are due for excellent electric lighting effects on the stage.

That bashful young man Mr. L. C. Godfrey, scored a hit in two love songs, in which he showed the girls a pair "goo-goo" eyes.

Messrs. Russell Blair and Wilson Grubb, played two fine mandolin—guitar duets. Mr. Grubb is an Academy student and kindly loaned his service to the Club.

Miss Sarah Fitzgerald sang two solos in which her sweet flexible voice was heard at its best.

Russell Blair and C. N. Meserve, were also among the soloists who were well received.

The male quartette composed of Messrs. Platts, Blair, Lukenback and Bullock in the first selections, Dunning in second selection, pleased the audience on two appearances.

The burlesque sextette composed of the Misses Brown, Walker and Fitzgerald and Messrs Bullock, Blair and Godfrey, captured the house with "Tell me Pretty Ladies" and a descriptive selection entitled "The Old Oaken Bucket." Yes it was both an artistic and musical success together with the financial balance on the right side, thanks to the W. C. T. U. who donated the Hall. Prof. W. F. Dunning is entitled to much credit as leader, vocalist and accompanist, and mention should also be made of Miss Mary Brown and Mrs. C. N. Meserve, who also filled the important part of accompanist.

Another appearance of the club is scheduled for the near future.

Three Men Taken to Jail.

On Tuesday a railroad policeman caught three fellows at Snow Shoe Intersection who were trying to get to Tyrone on a freight train. The fellows were brought to Bellefonte and taken to jail, the detective said he was going to keep them there for ten days. Of course it is against the rules of the company for any one not employed by them to ride on these freight trains, for should one of these persons get hurt they would come on the company for damages, although the party would be tresspassing. On the other hand we understand these men were on their way in search of work and had no money to pay their way and this was the only means of getting to where they could get employment and the cop nabbed them and brought them to the Centre County jail.

These men are to stay here ten days, perhaps they would be willing to remain a month this kind of weather without work at a place where they have a good comfortable place to sleep and enough to eat. But must the people of Centre County stand the expense of boarding these fellows? Of course we are not kicking on the little bit these men eat but it seems to us that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company shou'd stand the expense of keeping these men. Three men a month would cost the county something like $20.00 or $30.00. Now if the railroad company pays this they would have better let the men go on their way as it would not have cost them quite so much.

SECOND BRIGADE CAMP.

What its Location near Tyrone will Mean for the Town.

The second brigade comprises five regiments of infantry, two troops of cavalry and one battery of artillery, located all over Western Pennsylvania, the territory of this brigade extending as far east as Lewistown. The regiments in their order, are the Fifth, under Colonel Hugh S. Taylor, of Bellefonte, composed of companies from Huntingdon, Bellefonte, Hollidaysburg, Blairsville, Altoona, Johnstown, Indiana and Lewistown, with band at Clearfield; the Tenth, under Colonel Barnett, is located in Southwestern Pennsylvania with headquarters in Washington, Pa.; the Fourteenth, under Colonel Thompson, and the Eighteenth, under Colonel Rutledge, both in and about Pittsburg; and the Sixteenth under Colonel Hulings, covering all the northwest portion of the state with headquarters at Oil City.

The cavalry are the Sheridan troop, of Tyrone, under Captain L. F. Crawford, and Troop F, of Newcastle, under Captain J. V. Cunningham. The artillery is composed of Battery B, of Pittsburg, under Captain Rees.

The entire membership of the above organizations is about 3 300 officers and men so that it is safe to say that there will be 3,500 men in camp; all for a period of eight days, and perhaps 500 of them for from two to to three days more. These troops all are equipped as completely as the regular army, and it may be said for Battery B, that it has an armament of the latest pattern which has not yet been given to all the regular artillery.

During the term of camp, the troops are supplied with rations from the commissary department, which usually purchases all supplies in the neighborhood of the camp. The daily consumption is about 3,500 loaves of bread, two tons of fresh beef, 60 bushels of potatoes, with coffee, sugar, cheese, dried fruit, pickles, vinegar, spices, tomatoes and other essentials in proportion.

The Quartermaster's department furnishes the grain and forage for the horses of which there will be about 300 in camp; supplies firewood to keep about 75 ranges, hot, and ice to keep 3,500 soldiers cool.

To transport these troops will require 65 passenger cars; their horses will require 18 horse cars; the tents and camp equippage about eight or ten cars; and the baggage possibly twenty cars more.

The ground required for the pitching of the tents alone will be about 50 acres, while the drill and parade ground will require 60 to 80 acres more.

Should the encampment of the Second brigade be located at Tipton this year it will no doubt prove a source of the greatest interest to the people of almost half the state, and special trains and excursions would likely be run by the Pennsylvania railroad from most surrounding towns and likely from as far west as Pittsburg. An encampment always brings, in addition many visitors who remain during the entire camp, and it is more than likely that the Tyrone hotels would be called on to repeat their conference experiences or perhaps experience even more strenuous ones.

Good Many Drunks Saturday Night.

On Saturday night on Willowbank the citizens of that quiet neighborhood were aroused from their midnight slumbers by four men and a woman all so drunk that they didn't know what they were doing, saying or going. The women seemed to be worse than the fellows and it is said she used some pretty stiff language. Then earlier in the evening along high street and in front of the Bush House several sots were standing tanked up to the brim but knew enough to offer insulting remarks to men and ladies as they passed by. It seems strange that this kind of work is tolerated in a town like Bellefonte. Such as the like should be driven out of town and the sooner we are rid of them the better off we'll be.
